Russia And China Tremble On Brink Of War Today

BATTLE OF BIG FORCES IS FORECAST

Manchurian War Lord Orders Mobilization Entire Reserve Strength Today

Soviet Union Has 40,000 Of Crack Men Already On Border, Reports Say

SHANGHAI, China, Aug. 23.—(UP)—China and Russia trembled on the brink of war today as observers predicted the imminence of a major conflict between great bodies of armed forces on the Siberian-Manchurian border.

The predictions were based on the maneuvering of large units from both sides into positions of strategic importance.

Gen. Chang Hsueh-liang, youthful war lord of Manchuria, ordered the mobilization of the entire reserve forces of the three north-eastern provinces—Heilungkiang, Kirin and Fengtien—which are estimated to number at least 120,000 men.

Official reports from Peking indicated that 50,000 Mukden troops were moving northward by way of Taonanfu and that in addition heavily loaded troop trains from Kirin province were moving toward the border by way of Changchun. While most of these troops are believed destined for the western border, where fighting has been frequent in the vicinity of Manchuli, some of the strength is expected to be diverted to the eastern area in the vicinity of Pogranichnaya.

Chinese intelligence officers, reporting on the Soviet concentration, assert that the Soviet union has 30,000 and 40,000 well-trained troops in position.

Both the Chinese and the Russians have large forces concentrated near Manchuli, near the western border, which is the western

AGED OPIUM ADDICT GRANTED PROBATION

Probation and a 30-day suspended county jail sentence were given to Henry Kom, 80-year-old Chinese, charged with hpossession of opium, who appeared in Superior Judge James L. Allen's court today. Kom had pleaded guilty to the charge. During his stay of three weeks in the Orange county hospital he has not used the drug.

Dr. Harry Zaiser, director of the hospital, testified today that he believed incarceration in an institution or in a penitentiary would be fatal to the aged Chinese. Kom probably will be placed under custody of a cousin, Wong Chen, in Los Angeles.

Kom testified that he had not used opium in the hospital. "All I got is pain in the stomach," he said. Dr. Zaiser explained that these cramps were the result of stopping use of opium.

Fair Grounds Scene of Big Meeting—28 Department Heads at Work

THE AUGUST meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Orange county turned into a booster session for the Orange County Fair last night. The members of the organization met in the dining room at the fair grounds for the dinner meeting after inspecting the work that has been done in preparation for the opening of the fair next week.

Following the dinner H. A. Lake, president of the Orange County Fair, told of the work that is being accomplished by the organization and introduced several department heads who told something of the plans for their divisions at the event. Lake asserted that the secret of the success of the fair was co-operation and urged that everyone get behind the proposition. "There are 28 department heads working under the eight directors appointed by the state. In the county now there are some 5000 persons working on exhibits that will be shown here," the fair president declared. "We have ordered 4000 ribbons and 160 cups and will draw 1000 premium checks as awards for these exhibits. The directors have spent a great deal of time and preparation, holding weekly meetings all through the year, in an effort to make the fair this year greater than ever before."

Mr. Lake announced that the state board had requested that in the future the Orange county fair be held at a time when it would not conflict with the state fair. He explained that this date had been selected because in the past after all dates had been set, the Pomona fair had jumped its date and been held at the same time as the Orange county fair.

George Kellogg, in charge of the main feature tent, stated that the exhibits here would combine the birds, bees, flowers and fruits in a beautiful picture. There will be a floral exhibit, the subtropical fruits exhibit that has attracted such wide

WOMAN AND LOVER HANGED IN QUEBEC

HULL, Que., Aug. 23.—(UP)—Mrs. Marie Viau, mother of eight children, and her lover, Philibert Lefebvre, were hanged today after admitting they killed the woman's husband so they might carry on their clandestine love affair.

Two postponements during the trial, lengthened the hours that the 42-year-old woman and her 32-year-old lover, had left to live, but shortly after 8 a. m., they were hanged on the provincial scaffold brought here from Montreal.

She was the sixth woman to be hanged in Quebec. Lefebvre preceded Mrs. Viau to the gallows. Shortly before 8 o'clock he was led from the little Hull jail, up the nine steps to the trap, and at 8 a. m. the trap was sprung.

After he had been pronounced dead, Mrs. Viau was led to the gallows and the trap was sprung at 8:16 a. m.

Charles Swanner, city attorney of Santa Ana and San Clemente, tendered his resignation at last night's meeting of the San Clemente city council.

GOVERNMENT IS READY TO BUY BETTER CORNER

Acquisition of Parcel Will Complete Purchase of Postoffice Site

UNDER AN agreement reached between the government and Mr. and Mrs. William Besser, 201 East Sixth street, the government is to pay $22,500 for the Besser corner at Sixth and Bush. Acquisition of this parcel will complete the purchase by the United States for a federal building of all of the frontage on the east side of Bush street between Sixth and Seventh streets.

According to T. E. Stephenson, postmaster, the decision to accept the Besser offer to sell for $22,500 was reached in the office of the United States district attorney in Los Angeles yesterday. Stephenson attended the conference.

Several weeks ago, the U. S. Treasury department settled upon the Bush street property as the site for the proposed federal building here. Through P. P. Nickey, J. C. Horton, H. A. Gardner and others a proposal was made to the government by Nickey for the 175-foot frontage on the east side of Bush street, south of Seventh street, by a depth of 150 feet. This parcel contains 75 feet at Seventh and Bush occupied by a parsonage by the First Congregational church, 50 feet owned by J. C. Metzgar and 50 feet owned by Mrs. Williams, together with 25-foot strips on the west side of lots facing on Spurgeon street owned by William Salisbury and J. C. Metzgar. The Salisbury property is occupied by James Sleeper. Deeds for all this property are now in escrow.

Terms were not reached for the Besser property and the Treasury department turned the matter over to the U. S. district attorney with instructions to condemn the property. The property owners represented by Nickey are to pay the difference between the amounts to be paid the property owners and the $18,500 to be paid for the 175-foot frontage by the government.

Recently, Mr. and Mrs. Besser offered to accept $22,500, and thus end

MISS JACOBS LOSES TO BRITISH WOMAN

FOREST HILLS, L. I., Aug. 23.—Miss Helen Jacobs, America's second ranking woman tennis star, lost a bitter three set battle to Mrs. Phoebe Watson, of Great Britain, in the semi-final round of the National Women's tennis championships here today.

The scores were 6-1, 3-6, 6-4. Helen Willis, stern and relentless, battered her way to an overwhelming victory over Molla Mallory, former American champion. The scores were 6-0, 6-0.

THE REGISTER PASSES 13,000 CIRCULATION POINT

The entire staff of the Santa Ana Daily Register is happy today, and is congratulating R. M. Conklin, the Circulation Manager, as last night the A. B. C. net paid number of subscribers definitely passed the figures of 13,000. The office copies and papers to advertisers added made the entire complete net press run of 13,425.

These figures show a net gain of over 1200 in the city of Santa Ana and Orange county during the past 12 months and a very substantial part of this increase is found to be in the city of Santa Ana itself. This increase is over one year ago yesterday.

This remarkable situation in the midst of the summer vacation, and before the vacationists have returned for the fall work and again started their papers, is one of the most pleasing experiences any paper has ever enjoyed.

The management desires to thank its friends for their appreciation of The Register, and for their aid in securing these fine results.

The daily reports in the Circulation Department are prophecies of great things for The Register, and indicate a wholesome growth and condition in the entire county of Orange.

SOVIET PLANE HOPS OFF FOR UNITED STATES

Leaves Moscow on First Leg of Journey to Omsk At 3:15 a. m. Today

MOSCOW, Aug. 23.—(UP)—A new bi-motored all-metal monoplane, christened "Land of the Soviets," took off from Moscow at 3:15 a. m. today (10:15 p. m. Thursday, E.S.T.) for Omsk, enroute to New York.

The plane is a duplicate of the "Land of the Soviets" plans which was damaged in a forced landing last week in a forest near Chita, Siberia because of motor trouble.

The same crew which came to grief after having traversed many hundreds of miles of the course to New York, manned the new "Land of the Soviets."

Joseph Unsicht, assistant commissar of war and other military and aviation officials of the soviet republic witnessed the takeoff.

The fliers are due at Omsk, 1400 miles away, during the afternoon. The first lap of the flight is the longest single hop of the contemplated itinerary, although the plane is capable of a cruising radius much in excess of 2400 miles, according to the navigator, Boris Sterligoff.

The plane has a capacity of 3 tons of gasoline and fully loaded and equipped weighs eight tons. Besides Sterligoff, the crew consists of Pilot Semyon Shestakov, Abe Philip Bolotov, who will guide the ship through the fogs of the North Pacific above the Aleutian Islands, A. Shestakov, mechanic, and D. B. Fofayev, Semyon Stakof has a flight in 1927 from Tokyo to Moscow and return to his record and is regarded as the ace of the soviet army and navy fliers.

Numerous stops are included on the itinerary. The fliers expected to make their first landing on the United States soil at Seward, Alaska, flying from there to Seattle and San Francisco, thence eastward to Chicago and New York.

Speich climbed to the pilot seat and started the plane on its journey at 12:55 p. m. As the tail skid dropped out of the runway the ship lurched slightly and then steadied itself. The tail was off the ground again after a run of 1500 feet. The ship began to lift at 2900 feet.

Speich carried a rabbit's foot in his shirt pocket as a good luck piece when he started. He did not have a "smoke" with him on the takeoff. He explained that he did not wish to take any chance on an accidental fire.

Officials of the Zenith concern and of the National Aeronautical association were on hand for the start of the flight. In addition to Price, Millard C. Boyd, chief engineer for Zenith; Sol Spiegel, chief mechanic; Glen Hannett, in charge of the fabric and wing de-

Crime Career Of Three Lads Ends; 1 Dead, 2 In Prison

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 23.—(UP)—The short crime career of three eastern youths in California had ended here today with one of the participants dead and the other two under sentence of seven years to life in San Quentin prison.

Early Tuesday morning James Barry and Nicholas Carter, Alias Charles Gillis, both of Quincy, Mass., and Ralph Kemp, New York, engaged in a running gun fight with police and deputy sheriffs, who found them prowling around a summer hotel.

Barry was killed and Kemp and Carter, the later slightly wounded, were captured.

Later yesterday the two survivors pleaded guilty to burglary charges and received the prison sentences.

Plane Unable To Rise More Than 15 Feet

Over 5000 Spectators Disappointed as Hop Fails To Get Under Way

NARROWLY missing a hill below the far end of the Eddie Martin airport, Vernon Speich, Santa Ana pilot aviator, a possible crash in his Zenith 26 biplane at 1 p. m. today when he saw that the craft would be unable to clear the obstruction and brought it to a halt after it had risen to a height of 15 feet in an attempt to break the world's solo endurance record for non-refueled planes.

The plane left the ground after a run of 2500 feet and took the air slowly. When Speich saw the hill looming ahead and realized that the craft would be unable to top it, he hurriedly changed his plans and brought it to earth, avoiding possible injury to the plane and pilot.

Despite the forced landing Speich did not dump his 514 gallons of gasoline and brought the ship to earth without straining it in any way under its heavy load and without damaging the landing gear.

According to Sterling Price, president of the Zenith Aircraft corporation, the ship will be prepared for another attempt tomorrow morning.

The start of the attempt was made from the far north end of the field, with the tail of the ship almost against the road and propped so that the plane got away in a flying position. A greased runway held the tail skid for 60 feet in order to make an easier takeoff possible.

Speich climbed to the pilot seat and started the plane on its journey at 12:55 p. m. As the tail skid dropped out of the runway the ship lurched slightly and then steadied itself. The tail was off the ground again after a run of 1500 feet. The ship began to lift at 2900 feet.

Speich carried a rabbit's foot in his shirt pocket as a good luck piece when he started. He did not have a "smoke" with him on the takeoff. He explained that he did not wish to take any chance on an accidental fire.

L. A. COUNTY TAXES BOOSTED 14 CENTS

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 23.—(UP)—A county tax rate of 86 cents a $100, the highest rate in Los Angeles county since 1894, was in prospect today following the acceptance of the 1929-30 budget by the county board of supervisors.

The 14-cent increase is due, it was said, to a four-cent increase to purchase civic center property, five cents for increased salaries for county employees, two cents to buy beach land, one cent for exploitation, and two cents to cover increased cost of government.

County expenses this year will total over $56,000,000, nearly a $14,000,000 increase.

Ghost Stories Heard In Death Quiz

HUNTINGTON PARK, Aug. 23.—(UP)—Stories of ghosts and other phantoms were heard by police today as they investigated the death of Arthur Craddock, 62, who lived with his sister in a tiny house here.

Craddock, it was said, apparently died more than a week ago and his sister, Margaret, 60, kept vigil at his bedside until police broke in and discovered his body last night. She was taken into custody and will be examined for insanity, it was said.

Police said superstitious residents of the neighborhood told of phantom figures flitting around the Craddock home at night. Many children and some adults were afraid to pass the place after dark.

Jury Unable To Reach Verdict In McGee Perjury Case

CRASH HURTS ARE FATAL TO WOMAN

Mrs. Virginia Smith, 33, of 30 State street, Pasadena, who was injured several days ago in an automobile accident, near Santa Ana, died yesterday afternoon in the Santa Ana hospital as a result of the injuries she received.

The accident occurred when the car in which she was a passenger was involved in a collision with a truck as the truck made a left turn into a ranch driveway, it was reported.

Several other elderly women were passengers in the car, which was being driven to an Orange county real estate development, according to reports at the time of the crash. The body was removed to the Smit hand Tuthill Funeral parlors. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

VOTE REPORTED TO BE 11 TO 1 FOR CONVICTION

More than 24 hours after launching its consideration of evidence in the case of William R. McGee, charged with perjury, a jury of eight women and four men was discharged at 11:30 a. m., today, in Superior Judge H. G. Ames' court, after it had failed to reach a verdict.

At a late hour, last night, the vote is said to have stood 11 to one for conviction and the result of the last poll is said to have revealed the same situation existing.

McGee's case was referred to the master calendar for resetting. The Los Angeles man will be tried again, according to a statement from the district attorney's office.

The jury, composed largely of salesmen selected from a special venire, apparently took its duties with the utmost seriousness yesterday and several times returned to the courtroom for instructions to be read to them again. Twice the jury asked to have the transcript of testimony in the McGee trial and in that of Walter Meeks, from which the perjury charge arose, read to it.

McGee is asserted by the prosecution, handled by Deputy District Attorneys Leo Friis and S. B. Kaufman, to have perjured himself when he testified for Meeks, who was convicted here on a charge of selling liquor. McGee was represented by Sidney Sampson and Stanley Visel, Los Angeles attorneys.

GRAF ZEPPELIN STARTS OFF TO LOS ANGELES

Zepplin for two days. Shortly after noon today, however, weather reports handed to Dr. Eckener indicated that his course along the Aleutian Islands and down the Pacific coast over Seattle, Portland and San Francisco to Los Angeles would be almost entirely free from disturbing elements. The Graf was walked out of the hangar at 2:55 p. m. (12:55 a. m. EST).

Four days are expected to be consumed in this third stage of the four lap journey about the globe.

Huge crowds surged about the airdrome at Kasumigaura naval base to see the departure of the Graf and the cheers of the multitudes followed the big silver bag far out to sea. The Zepplin quickly gained an altitude of approximately 1000 feet and roared away into the east, disappearing from sight in the hazy horizon seven minutes after it had left the ground.

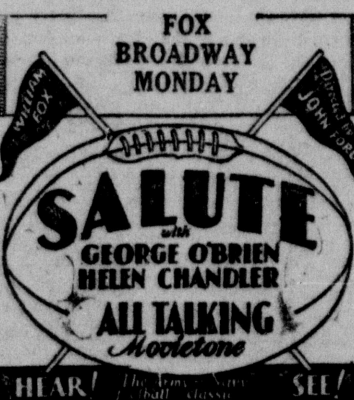

With 11,080 miles of its 20,000-mile circuit of the globe completed, the Graf Zepplin faced a journey of approximately 6000 miles to Los Angeles, and then across the United States to Lakehurst, its starting point.

19 Passengers
The Zepplin carried 18 passengers and a crew of 40. Among those who left the ship here after the flight across Siberia from Friedrichshafen was Prof. Kharklin, the Russian geographer, who is returning by railway to Moscow. He did not enjoy the trip much, as he spoke neither English nor German and could not mingle with the passengers.

New passengers were Dofu Shirai, Nippon Dempo correspondent, who will leave the ship at Los Angeles, and Lieut. Commander Kusaka, of the Japanese navy. The mishap to the rear engine of gondola early yesterday morning was the first accident so far on the Zepplin's triumphant flight. Commander Eckener, anxious to get started and complete the schedule he has set, had men working at top speed on the motor all day, and it was restored to condition in record time.

Dr. Eckener hopes to reach Lakehurst in six days' flying time, not counting a stop of probably

PLAN NOW IN GENERAL USE THROUGH STATE

Possibility of the operation of a bus system in Santa Ana under a temporary permit loomed today with the statement by City Attorney Charles Swanner that he would recommend this course of action to the city council at its meeting next Monday.

"I have been informed that there is only one other city in California where bus systems are operated under the franchise arrangement," Swanner said. "Even in Los Angeles the system of some 216 busses operates under the temporary permit plan. This permit gives the city better control over the operator and under the provisions on which it is issued may be revoked on 60 days' notice. Thus if satisfactory service were not given we could find another operator who would do better."

Swanner issued his statement when asked if the city would advertise for bids on a franchise upon receipt of notice from the Pacific Electric that it had been granted permission to cease operation of its bus system. This permission is expected with the next few days.

Members of the city council previously had indicated that in the event the Pacific Electric secured permission from the state railroad commission to withdraw the franchise for sale and secure someone to carry on bus service for Santa Ana.

Councilman Stanley Goode stated today that the city would see to it that bus service is maintained, making the reservation that the city, of course, did not contemplate public ownership. He suggested that temporary service of some kind would be provided pending permanent arrangements.

P-T-A. FAIR IN BEACH CITY DRAWS CROWD

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 23.—The Parent-Teacher association's annual children's fair and carnival was held in the city auditorium last night. Preceding the fair a street parade was held in the afternoon with many children taking part. A hastily organized children's band carried on a truck provided music for the parade. Every imaginable kind of noisemaker was represented in the band from tin pans and cowbells to regular band instruments. What the band lacked in music was made up in noise.

The fair at the auditorium took on the form of a carnival, with various booths presided over by the members of the P-T-A. On the stage a pleasing musical and literary program was given. Money received is to be used for the milk fund of the organization to provide milk for kindergarten children at the grammar school.

Dr. Ralph E. Hawes and his sister, Mrs. Edna Siemens gave vocal numbers. For encore they sang "The Utah Trail." D. P. Barry gave several selections on the harmonica, responding to numerous encores. Dorothy Vincent gave a recital and for encores responded with song numbers.

Jessie McDowell gave acrobatic numbers, and a tap dance by a girl sextet completed the program.

Mrs. Margaret Colvin, president of the association, was assisted in planning and conducting the fair by the entire membership.

Mrs. I. H. Clarke had charge of the parade and popcorn booth and in charge of booths last night were Mrs. Mildred Ridenour, Mrs. Pat Osborne, Mrs. C. W. Patrick, Mrs. W. H. Jones, Mrs. Stump, Mrs. Barry, Mrs. Olson, Miss Nancy Clapp and Miss Helen Barry.

OVER 10,000 MUSIC LOVERS CROWD BIRCH PARK FOR LAST OF BAND'S SUMMER CONCERTS

By RUTH ANDREWS
Playing to an audience that rivalled the record crowd present at the recent "Cadman" program, the Santa Ana Municipal band, directed by D. C. Cianfoni, was host, last night, to another throng exceeding 10,000 music lovers, gathered in Birch park from many neighboring Southland cities to enjoy the elaborate novelty program presented in honor of "Italian Night," the concluding concert of the band's summer series.

Had more standing room been available, it would, no doubt, have been filled. The vast audience again filled the park to overflowing, solidly packing the surrounding streets where cars were parked for blocks before 5 o'clock. People also crowded behind the bandstand, on the opposite side of the park. It was no small tribute to the worthwhileness of a musical organization, which thousands of people will stand throughout a period of two and a half hours for the privilege of hearing it.

Triumphantly majestic, the favorite "Aida" Grand march (Verdi) prefaced the all-Italian program, so undeniably vivid with Latin color and warmth throughout.

Forceful Reading
One of the most brilliant overtures in symphonic repertoire, Rossini's "Semiramide," was accorded especially forceful reading, vital contrasts of shading and instrumentation displaying exquisite control, every gesture of the director replete with meaning. An introductory andante brass chorale abruptly broken by brief forte theme prefaced graceful tracery of clarinet against full-throated brass, gradual crescendos clearly marked. Thrilling, fiery, the second movement was powerful with sustained allegro, electrifying contrasts and frenzied finale.

Lighter in vein, none the less appealing, contrasted moods modulated pleasingly in "Italian Songs" (arr. Tom Clark), sentiment, melody, gaiety and ardor being typical. Despite former triumphs, Margherita Marsden, popular mezzo-soprano and choral leader, perhaps never was more enjoyed than during last night's program. Her first appearance in two provocative Italian folk-songs, a novelty in which she specializes advantageously, accompanied by the band, won instant favor. Picturesque and vivacious in native costume, with spirit and assurance, Mrs. Marsden scored a real triumph in the provocative "La Spagnola." The saucy "Tarantella,"

Outstandingly inspirational in dramatic gravity was the truly beautiful portrayal, in costume, of the famous duet, "Home to Our Mountains," from the final act of "Il Trovatore" (Verdi) by Margherita Marsden and Carl Sibbert, this

H. B. CHAMBER PLANS RODEO ON LABOR DAY

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 23.—Huntington Beach is to have a Labor day celebration. The affair will be under the direction of the publicity committee of the chamber of commerce and will take the form of a rodeo program to be held at the Standard Oil ball park at First street and Ocean avenue. The program will be free.

A complete rodeo program is planned with well known riders of Huntington Beach and Orange county including cowgirls and cowboys in dress of the range. There will be bucking contests and roping and riding contests. The arena will be securely roped off to prevent the animals from bucking their way out of the park. The committee for the rodeo includes Clint Brush, W. H. Jones, Frank Lipscombe, Walter and Joe Peters, Fred Brush, Billy and Hazel Whitehead, Marguerite and Leona Peters, Sam Youngblood and his clown mule, Lem Thrall of the Irvine ranch, A. C. Dillard, of Whittier; Walter Lamb, Roy Callahan, T. B. Talbert, W. T. Vanduff, J. J. Farnsworth, John Wagner.

The chamber of commerce committee in charge includes Walter McMillan, director; Ralph C. Turner, A. H. Frost, Jack Robertson, W. H. Gallienne. A company of Boy Scouts will aid.

melodic gem made doubly impressive by artistic band accompaniment. Intensity of emotion was evident in Mrs. Marsden's dramatic portrayal of the difficult role of Azucena, with Sibbert, as Manrico, singing with touching pathos, tonal beauty and the same control evidenced in earlier solos. Sensitiveness of Cianfoni's conducting in this score, one of his favorites, was marked, singers and conductor well-meriting the resultant long-continued ovation accorded this serious rendition.

Picture-contrast was struck in artistic interpretation of the fascinating ballet, "The Dance of the Hours," from Ponchielli's "La Gioconda," offered by a dainty ensemble of 24 diminutive dancers from the Putnam School of Dancing. Colorful grace of weaving dancers in symbolic pantomime was delightful, musical accompaniment by the band being equally pleasing and charming. Peggy Kiskadden, as premiere danseuse, portrayed Night in sable-sequined draperies, with Audrey Savage, a dainty soloist in golden tulle. Beauty of the finale by the entire ensemble was so thoroughly enjoyed that its repetition was necessitated.

Spectacular contrasts of the glorious "William Tell" overture (Rossini) never thrilled with more dramatic fervor than during last night's rendition of this universal favorite. Crash of the storm in realistic fury of orchestration quickly followed pastoral opening andante, the tonal volume of sound gradually subsiding into peace and harmony restored. Virile allegro marcato of the excellently co-ordinated finale brought a thrilling demonstration from the crowd.

Outstandingly inspirational in dramatic gravity was the truly beautiful portrayal, in costume, of the famous duet, "Home to Our Mountains," from the final act of "Il Trovatore" (Verdi) by Margherita Marsden and Carl Sibbert, this

SHE RECEIVED GIFT BUT IT COST HER $9 DUTY CHARGE

While gifts from one's family are always acceptable there are times when they may be productive of embarrassing situations, as was the case, recently, for pretty Catalina Valdez, when she received birthday greetings, in Santa Ana, from her mother in far-off Mexico City.

For in planning the choicest gift she might send her daughter on her birthday, Senora Maria Valdez chose several beautiful sets of linen, rich with the drawnwork for which Mexico is so justly famous, and never remembered that the duty on this class of work, would enter into the question at all.

Her daughter, Catalina, has been in the United States for some time and has other relatives in Los Angeles. For the last year she has been with Mr. and Mrs. Calvin C. Eib, 1417 North Main street, where she is Mrs. Eib's very trusted and appreciated companion in the absence of her own daughter, Miss Gertrude Eib, who is a senior in Berkeley.

When the young senorita received the package from Mexico City containing the drawn work, it was learned that a duty of over $12 was required. For a young girl dependent upon her own efforts for her living, this seemed quite high for a gift that had been chosen to express only family affection. So the Santa Ana postoffice manifested an interest in the matter and asked the customs officials in Los Angeles for a reappraisal, a privilege of which anyone to whom such a package is consigned may avail himself.

The amount due then was placed at $9, at which sum the young girl, aided by her employers, secured her precious gift—and everybody was happy.

CHILD BEING HELD ON THEFT CHARGE

A 13-year-old boy, with an alleged fondness for money, was arrested today by Officer Ingles, of the Orange police force, and turned over to county juvenile authorities.

The lad took a purse, containing $1.50 and several articles, from a service station in Orange. It was said, and in the Valencia tavern, on the state highway, is asserted to have taken a purse containing $15. With the money from the two hauls he purchased two rifles, six boxes of shells, a haircut and several soft drinks, the officer claimed.

According to Officer Ingles and Chief of Police Richards, the boy has confessed. His home is in Santa Ana.

WOMEN ESCAPE SERIOUS HURTS IN AUTO CRASH

NO PROHIBITION IN NEW YORK, ASSERTS VISEL

Mrs. C. H. Dean and her daughter, Miss Ethel Dean, today were resting comfortably in their home, 1078 West Sixth street, following an automobile accident in which they were involved, yesterday, near Long Beach, and which, it was feared at first, was to have serious consequences for Mrs. Dean.

The two were on their way to Long Beach and were near the long hill at the Bixby ranch when they were forced off the road by a car entering from an intersection, according to their accounts. Their automobile was forced into a deep ditch, where it overturned and was wrecked. When removed from the wreckage, Mrs. Dean was unconscious, and it was feared she had sustained a concussion and internal injuries. However, beyond painful bruises, deep cuts and a sprained ankle, her condition was not believed today to be serious. Miss Dean escaped with numerous scratches and bruises.

There is no such thing as prohibition in New York. It just doesn't exist.

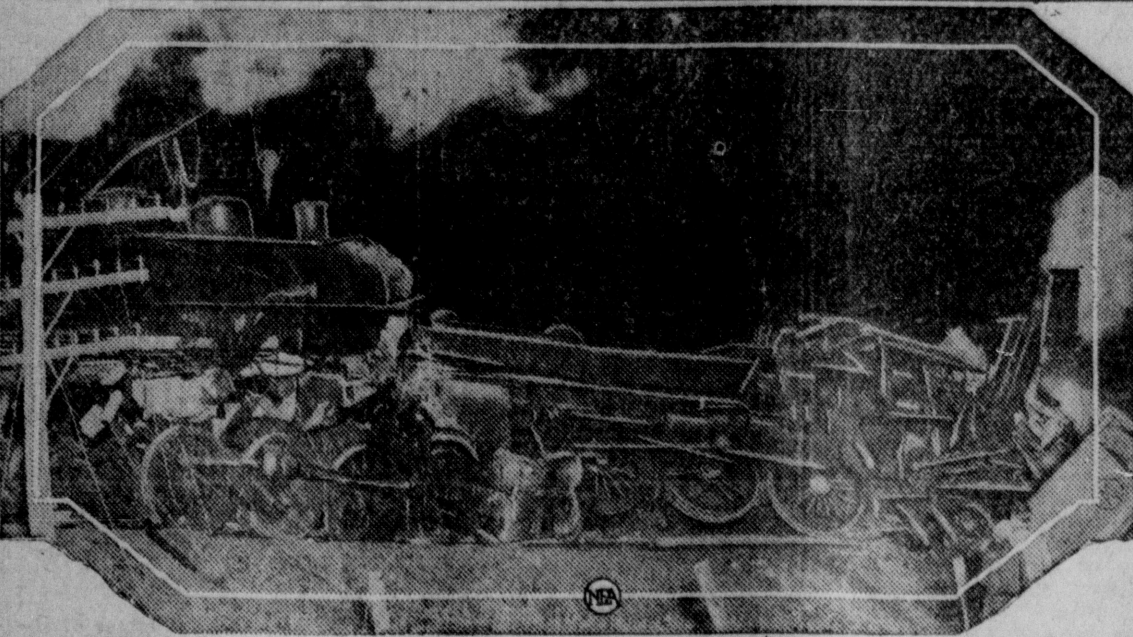

That is the opinion of Jacob Visel, former deputy district attorney in New York and a graduate of the Santa Ana high school. Visel was in Santa Ana, today, acting for his brother, Stanley Visel, of Los Angeles, counsel for William R. McGee, who has been on trial in superior court on a charge of perjury.

Jacob Visel formerly was in charge of prohibition cases in New York, he said. He recalled that several years ago, under a state enforcement law since supplanted, the state had selected 14 of its strongest liquor cases out of thousands and that acquittals resulted in every one.

He will be in Santa Ana for about 10 days, visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Visel, 1120 North Bush street. On his trip to California, by way of Canada, the attorney took note of liquor conditions, he said. On a three-day train trip from Montreal to Vancouver, Visel recalled that he did not see a single person take a drink, although liquor was obtainable at every station at which the train stopped and could have been taken onto the train.

On coming down the coast from Portland to Los Angeles, however, Visel said he noted that in the buffet car men were playing bridge for gin rizzes most of the time.

Visel and his father, who formerly was mayor of Santa Ana, are planning to take a trip into Mexico during the attorney's stay here. He now is engaged in private practice in New York.

GIRL GETS $500 EACH FOR FOUR TEETH LOST IN CRASH

A new respect for the value of teeth may be stimulated as a result of the compromise, today, of a disputed claim hereby Margaret Culp, 17, of Brea, will receive $2000, or $500 a tooth, for four molars which were knocked from her upper jaw in an automobile accident.

Miss Culp, with her father, W. A. Culp, came into Superior Judge James L. Allen's court today seeking to have Culp authorized to accept $2000 in payment for his daughter's injury. According to Miss Culp's testimony, she was riding in a car with Adelbert Andrew, on June 13, between Anaheim and Garden Grove, when his car was forced off the road into a telephone pole. When she emerged from the wreck, she found that she had lost four teeth somewhere in the wreckage.

According to the petition, the disputed claim was against Adelbert Andrew, A. O. Andrew and the Associated Indemnity company.

Court Notes

Seeking judgment for $381.92 for goods alleged to have been sold and delivered to the defendant at his request the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company today brought suit against E. H. Stafford. The complaint said that nothing had been paid on the asserted debt.

Charging desertion, Harvey C. Hollingsworth today brought suit for divorce against Nancy M. Hollingsworth. They were married in 1927 and separated Aug. 13, 1928, the complaint said.

Myrtle A. Shepard today filed suit for divorce against Charles G. Shepard, charging him with failure to provide and with desertion. They were married in 1916 and separated in 1927, the complaint stated. Mrs. Shepard asked to be awarded custody of the one minor child of the couple.

Only one defendant appeared yesterday before Judge J. F. Talbot in city court. Carl McCulloch came into court with a ticket charging that he had left a car parked between the hours of 2 and 5 a. m. He was fined $2.

Police News

Officer W. E. B. Sherwood answered a call last night to South Flower street, where an intoxicated man was reported loitering. His report of the case was that it was a family row and that the trouble had been settled peacefully.

A strange noise in a neighbor's house was reported to police at 8:15 last night by a resident of the 1800 block on Bush street. Officer Harry Fink, who investigated, reported that he could find nothing wrong.

Charles Oswalt, 34, fumigator, who lives at 813 West Bishop street, was lodged in the county jail last night by Deputy Sheriff M. E. Jemison on a charge of contempt of court.

An ornamental street light in the 1100 block on West Fourth street was demolished when the car of a driver who went to sleep crashed into it at 1:35 this morning, according to a report on file at police headquarters. The driver, Jack Schultz, 18, 1637 West Fourth street, was slightly injured, according to Sgt. F. M. Dean, who took him to the Orange County hospital for first aid treatment.

LAGUNA BEACH

Miss Georgina Mance and Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Elliott, with the latter's little daughter June, were week end visitors in the home of Mrs. Ella June LaPiere and her son, Perry LaPiere.

R. P. Haskins and his daughter, Maude, the latter the well known harpist, have returned to Los Angeles after a week in Laguna. Mr. Haskins divides his time between his home in Los Angeles and his son's ranch in Tajunga, through which the highway to the Antelope valley is being built.

Robert Wade, son of Mrs. Louise Henshaw, who will enter Stanford university at the opening of the fall quarter, is spending two weeks at El Mirador, Santa Barbara.

BASEBALL TILT IS FEATURE OF LIONS' OUTING

Leaving a heritage of tired muscles, yesterday's baseball game, staged by members of the Santa Ana Lions club in competition with their young sons, today was declared to have been one of the most strenuous exercises which the Lions have taken part in for some time and was one of the big features of the long-anticipated picnic and steak bake, held in Irvine park.

The picnic was a true family gathering and proved to be a thoroughly enjoyable occasion. Laden with well-filled baskets, including their individual needs in steaks, the picnicers drove to the park in time for the afternoon ball game, in which fathers and sons played such strenuous roles. Star plays in the game were made by two juniors, Lyle Anderson, Jr., and Howard Rapp, Jr.

Of special interest was the presence in the park of Mrs. Amelia Meagher and the children of the Orange County Health camp, who ate their picnic supper at adjoining tables. For the benefit of the Lions, the children put on a song and exercise program, including the impressive drill with which they raise the flag at 6:30 each morning.

Among the lads was young Bobby Page, 8, who has been in camp for over a year as a protégé of the Lions.

D. H. Betten, chairman of picnic arrangements, had provided coffee with sugar and cream together with individual ice cream cases for the picnicers and there were sufficient of the latter to provide the desert course for the health camp children.

STANTON

STANTON, Aug. 23.—The Wednesday Card club was entertained this week by Mrs. W. R. Martin in her residence on Termino avenue, Long Beach. There were three tables at luncheon and bridge. Mr. Blandon, a guest, won first prize of a hand-painted tray, and Mrs. Shinn, of Santa Fe Springs, won a hand-painted waste basket for second prize.

M., who is visiting relatives in this section for several weeks, the Rutledge, Grow, Christensen and Frohm families gave a picnic party at Anaheim park Tuesday evening. Dr. and Mrs. Fahrney, of Hollywood, were there as guests. Over 50 were present. A banquet was served. Four uncles of Mrs. Bobo were present. They were John and Frank Rutledge, of Stanton; Harry Rutledge, of Buena Park, and Oscar Rutledge, of Santa Ana.

S. H. Bowman and wife have been attending a four-day conference at the First Church of the Brethren in Long Beach. On Monday Mr. Bowman went out deep sea fishing with 12 other men of the church to catch fish for the Ladies' Aid dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wolfe of the C. C. M. O. lease have returned from a two weeks' vacation at Lake Arrowhead.

San Diego's Golf Classic Cancelled

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 23.—San Diego's annual $2500 open golf championship has been cancelled due to the proximity of the $25,000 Augusta National open, which officials think would overshadow the San Diego affair.

Don't pay more for any other tire unless more miles are guaranteed! [See our prices and guarantees below]

Buy Your Tires on a Guaranteed Mileage Basis Save $2 to $15 per Tire

ALL tires look good . . . when they're new. And they are good. But the big question that concerns the buyer is—

"How Good?"

To that question . . . names, claims, differences in price, do not offer the final answer.

So far as we know, there is only one thing that does answer the question: a definite, specific GUARANTEE of the minimum mileage your tire will deliver.

That is the basis—and the ONLY basis—on which automobile tires are sold by Montgomery Ward & Co.

The names RIVERSIDE and WARDWEAR are as good as any other tire names. But we do not advance names as the reason why you should buy from Ward's. Our tires are built by nationally-known manufacturers—of the finest materials and by the most modern methods . . . yet that is not the chief reason why millions of motorists are today riding on RIVERSIDES. We also claim that these tires represent more value per dollar than any other tires built . . . yet similar claims are offered on behalf of other brands.

None of these things decides the question of QUALITY . . . So—we offer you Ward's three guarantees . . . 30,000 miles unconditionally on the Super Service RIVERSIDE; 16,000 miles on the First Quality RIVERSIDE; 10,000 miles on the WARDWEAR . . . as instant indicators of the tire quality you can count on when you buy from Ward's.

—And Ward's prices clinch the argument with a SAVING of $2 to $15 on every tire!

Visit our store today—examine these tires for yourself. Remember: the proof of any advertisement is the performance of the product—and RIVERSIDE performance is definitely guaranteed! That's why we say: Do not pay more for any other tire unless more miles are guaranteed.

CHAPTER XLVII

"Merely this," Vilak answered.

"The first quest for gold, and to my mind the much less important, was the attempt of Limey Potts, Pasquale Branza, and Detto Cicerone. Three rogues working together, they believed—with reason—that they could easily get many thousands of dollars from you by kidnapping Tinky. That was why Limey was in the tree waiting for you to drive by the day Tony Barbetta was killed. He was going to cause you to have an accident or something of the sort and try to kidnap Tinky then. His arrest somewhat disrupted the trio's plans, but didn't block them.

"When Tinky disappeared the first time, it was the Italians who had taken him, one of them riding the horse with the injured foot which had belonged to Prentiss and which I afterward learned they had stolen. They were on the road to Furnace Caves when they were unfortunately enough to meet four mounted gentlemen who watch that place pretty closely just because it is such a haven for crooks and smugglers, and they had to run for it, being compelled at last to get rid of the child, which was crying in terror and otherwise embarrassing their flight.

"Falling in this scheme, Limey, after the other had aided him to escape from jail, decided on a much bolder experiment, which, if successful, he believed would be far more lucrative; that was to kidnap you yourself and threaten you until you gave them any amount of money they chose to ask for."

"Was that the occasion," the old man murmured, "the soldiers—yes, soldiers—captured us on the way to Villapa?"

"Exactly. Of course, that experiment was a failure, too. Meanwhile the two Italians, who, ne'er-do-wells themselves, were naturally on good terms with the ne'er-do-wells of the native population, had heard vague rumors about some of the Indians in D'Albentara's camp, and catching the poor drunken fellow we saved that night—you don't know about that incident, Elise—tortured him to see what he knew, and found his information highly interesting.

"Then, discouraged by the lack of success in their schemes to get money from Elise, they decided to abandon her in their plans, and follow up the information they had gained. Which brings us to the second and more important quest, the one which concerns Prentiss and D'Albentara."

"The tom-toms began to sound monotonously. He listened keenly a moment, then continued, 'I've told Nanny many times before that these people aren't Incas. Far from it. But they have been living in these Inca ruins for many generations and naturally have taken over any of the Inca possessions which remained.

"If you remember your histories, you'll recall that the thing they had most of was gold. Gold in such enormous quantities that the Spaniards who first saw their cities wouldn't credit their eyes. Walls of the nobles' houses literally covered with it, great vases, and even furniture made of it called it 'the tears of the sun'."

He gazed off toward the chief's palace silhouetted against the starry sky. "I was in that building with Batalagos this afternoon in a great stone basement of it is gold. A tremendous amount of gold ornaments, armor, carved flowers, all that sort of thing. How much it's worth, I couldn't estimate. Besides this there are rich gold mines a few miles away where it originally came from. I'm half inclined not to take you to see either. It's done too much harm, this gold. Killed too many people."

The hideous painted priests began a droning chant. "You know Prentiss is an archeologist. He's always specialized in Inca archeology. Some years ago he got into that trouble with the museum, you remember, and resigned under a cloud of scandal. He told me about it today. Got foolish over some woman, and sold a lot of the museum property which he had discovered to gratify her taste for money. No need going into details.

"But the effect of it was that he was pretty swiftly dropped by most of his friends and acquaintances and, embittered, went off to South America again, intending never to return to the States. He soon resumed his explorations and researches and was working in the eastern parts of Peru when he heard vague reports that there were interesting old Inca ruins off in this direction. So after some considerable wandering over the mountains and desert here in search of it, he finally arrived and found D'Albentara here.

"D'Albentara was one of those unusual persons you occasionally encounter," he went on. "A highly intelligent, cultured man who has some completely wrong. He was quite suspicious of Prentiss at first, but when he learned that the other's mission was purely an archaeological one, treated him very cordially, and they became good friends. Seems he was the ne'er-do-well son of an excellent Portuguese family, and having gone to Brazil to escape arrest after committing a murder, had been a civil engineer and numerous other things until he got into trouble again and had to leave once more.

"In this manner, drifting from wilder spot to wilder spot, he came by accident upon this place which belongs to Batalagos. He was a clever fellow, was D'Albentara, very clever. And it didn't take him long to find out about all the gold Batalagos had here or to make himself the half-breed's chief adviser so he could set about getting it. To do this he began playing politics.

"As I've often said, a king or chief is nothing but a different variety of ward politician. Batalagos especially deserved that designation because he wasn't too secure on his throne. He had plenty of enemies, particularly among those natives here who probably had considerable Inca blood in them and certainly came of good stock. Naturally, they bitterly resented having a mongrel like Batalagos over them. So Batalagos began systematically wiping them out. And D'Albentara carried his favor by helping him.

"Well, I remarked before that D'Albentara, after he found that Prentiss wasn't gold hungry, became friendly. Probably quite glad to see another white man, particularly an intelligent one. He invited Prentiss to see one of his executions, which was a perversion of the old Inca practice of human sacrifice.

"Prentiss went. The victim whom the gods had supposedly selected for the occasion was a baby, the son of one of the lighter skinned Indian families who had been chief's worst enemies. A child just about as old as Tinky was at the time.

"Prentiss was a scientist, who had steadfastly maintained that it was a bad plan for an archeologist to interfere in local politics. But despite his bitterness, he was at heart a very decent fellow in many ways, and when the execution was about to take it was a little more than he could stomach. He darted forward, knocked one of the priests down—he was quite husky then—and seized the baby in his arms.

"Of course, they caught him immediately; he was condemned to be sacrificed at once, for his violent act had outraged every god. He possessed, he was already on the sacrificial stone and the tattooers had just left him to begin work on the child, when fortunately for him Batalagos and some of his priests decided that the sacrifice had badly jolted the omens so that the time was no longer favorable. Consequently he and the child were thrown into prison to await a more favorable moment.

"I won't bother you with the details of how he escaped through the aid of friends of the child and, taking the baby with him, after incredible hardships finally got to Diamantino in western Brazil.

"Back in semi-civilization, he naturally thought he was safe, but he had been there two weeks, trying to recuperate from a wretched fever he had contracted coming through the jungle, when he found that D'Albentara and his men were following him. Not that D'Albentara bore him any personal enmity. He didn't. But the child had become a symbol. If he didn't bring it back, and if Prentiss' act went unpunished, Batalagos' prestige would be enormously diminished, and likewise that of his chief adviser. While if D'Albentara did succeed in returning Prentiss and the child, the grateful chief would refuse him nothing. A fact which Batalagos may or may not have pointed out.

"To make a long story short... From Diamantino Prentiss came out to Porto Verde and shut himself up on his father's old fazenda, letting no one know that he had the child with him. He hoped to throw D'Albentara's men off the track.

"He failed, of course. He tried to go back to the United States much as he didn't wish to after his unfortunate affair there. But he was crazy with illness and shattered nerves, and had got into some complicated mess about his passport and citizenship. The consular officials, to whom he told part of his story, thought he was completely mad, and wouldn't let him out of the country.

"That's why he treated you the way he did, Elise. Remembering the bitter quarrel between your family and his own over the ownership of his fazenda, in his half-damaged state your visits only made him more frantic, for he was certain, that with terrible fixedness of mind of a nervously overwrought person, that you were trying to drive him out of his last refuge.

When Babies CRY

Babies will cry, often for no apparent reason. You may not know what's wrong, but you can always give Castoria. This soon has your little one comforted; if not, you should call a doctor. Don't experiment with medicines intended for the stronger systems of adults! Most of those little upsets are soon soothed away by a little of this pleasant-tasting, gentle-acting children's remedy that children like.

It may be the stomach, or may be the little bowels. Or in the case of older children, a sluggish, constipated condition. Castoria is still the thing to give. It is almost certain to clear up any minor ailment, and could by no possibility do the youngest child the slightest harm. So it's the first thing to think of when a child has a coated tongue; won't play, can't sleep, is fretful or out of sorts. Get the genuine; it always has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.

KGO'S THREE BOYS ON ETHER TONIGHT

"The Three Boys of KGO"—Lon Proteau, Charles Linn and Reese Campbell—again will entertain their radio audience of KGO from 8:30 to 10 o'clock tonight.

The Boys attempt in their programs to give their own interpretations of Radio Rhythms. An example of this is the type and combination of instruments used; one of their most popular ensembles being their novelty combination of vibraphone, bass clarinet, and guitar. The Boys play so many different instruments that many letters from their fans have intimated that more than three artists are contributing to the program. All numbers, skits, instrumental effects, and vocal effects are handled entirely by the three young artists who play all of the following instruments: Piano, organ, celeste, vibraphone, banjo, guitar, steel guitar, lute, clarinet, bass clarinet, saxophone and oboe.

JOHN B. DANIEL, ANNOUNCER FOR NBC, SUCCEUMBS

Word of the death, in New York City, of John B. Daniel, nationally known announcer, whose voice has been heard since 1925 through NBC system stations, reached here today.

Daniel died the victim of peritonitis, which followed an operation, August 14, for appendicitis. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

The announcer's voice came to the west coast regularly during the Saturday night Lucky Strike Dance hour and during the Sunday afternoon Atwater Kent broadcast. He also had been heard as announcer during the "Hello Mars!" comedy sketch which has been a Tuesday feature for the last few months. One of the most popular NBC announcers, Daniel joined the staff of the New York studio in May, 1925, and spent two years in Washington, D. C. During the tenure of office of Calvin Coolidge, he introduced him to the radio audience no less than 20 times. He handled all major broadcasts from the capitol and was heard during the transcontinental broadcasts of the reception for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh following his spectacular flight; the reception for the Bremen flyers and the introduction of the Irish Free State president.

Daniel, a World War veteran, was born in London, England, in 1900, the son of Tom Daniel, an internationally known basso. He was educated in Scotland and the United States augmented his academic schooling with many years of music. Before entering radio, Daniel sang in musical comedy, vaudeville and was heard in concert and church groups.

The entire cast will be costumed in the production sung in a spacious glass-enclosed studio where the dramatic value will not be lost to the exposition audience.

The radio audience may picture a chorus of peasants and villagers in colorful Sicilian costume headed by Barbara Blanchard, Margaret O'Dea, Harold Spaulding and Austin Mosher, who are to sing the leading roles of the swift-moving drama.

Pitching in the Pinches

*Hurlers Called to the Mound
To Save Games That Are Slipping
Are the Undertakers of Baseball,
And Though the Managers Know
The Worth of Dugout Reserves,
Most Fans Do Not Realize That Pennants Are Won by Their Work*

Ex-Giant Doc Crandall . . . In his day starting pitchers were strong enough to work out of turn . . . willing enough to undertake the undertaker role besides.

By HENRY L. FARRELL

THE umpires saunter out to the plate at game time. The managers or the captains of the two teams come out and present their lineups . . . The starting pitcher takes his place on the mound. And then, in these days of the lively ball, the parade of the undertakers starts to the bull pen. The undertakers of baseball are the relief pitchers who are called upon to work when the game is going or gone. They spend their days pitching whole ball games in the bull pen.

The parade of the undertakers usually includes a veteran pitcher of two, a rookie or two and a couple of catchers. Their errand is to keep their arms warm and await the beckoning signal from the manager on the bench.

There were famous undertakers in the days before they injected the rabbit in the ball, but in the strict sense of the word they were not undertakers. They were starting pitchers, such as Crandall and Ed Walsh, who were strong enough to work out of turn and willing enough to come to the rescue when the pitcher in the box was in dire trouble.

But in these days managers look around for veteran pitchers in the minor leagues and hire them for the sole purpose of having them on hand when one of the regular pitchers gets in trouble. Their job most always consists in going out with the bases filled and the winning run on third base and getting the blame for losing the game.

In the old days the catcher who went out to the bull pen with the pitcher had a soft afternoon. All he had to do was sit in the shade and ponder about things that did not have anything to do with the ball game. Then get up when the word came from the bench and catch a few balls from the undertaker. But times have changed.

Matty Matthews is the official warm-up catcher for the New York Yankees. He goes out to the bull pen every day with a whole parade because the entire Yankee pitching staff has been in a bad way all season and the regulars have to be ready for the call just as the relief pitchers are.

"There's nothing to this job any more," Matthews says. "It used to be an easy job. There was one time when it was a real job, but that was before this lively ball started to scare the pitchers and made the game so hot a pitcher can't go nine innings."

"There was a time when a pitcher had to warm up only twice during the ball game. Once in the first inning just to see if the pitcher got started good and the second time coming into the ninth to see if a pinch hitter would be sent in for the pitcher. If the team was ahead you didn't have to warm up the second time. But now every time the batter gets a hit you have to jump up from the bench and warm up."

CELEBRATED undertakers of recent years include first of all Wilcey Moore, of the New York Yankees and Fred Marberry, of the Washington Senators. It is generally agreed that their work as relief pitchers won pennants for the two ball clubs.

There is some romance in the story of Wilcey Moore. He was an old fellow, as ball players are rated, and he had spent what he thought were his best days, traveling around through the small minor leagues. He had long lost his ambition to make the big time and was resigned to go back to the farm and pitch hay.

In the winter of 1926 when the baseball averages were published Ed Barrow, a shrewd baseball man, was sitting in his office. He is the business manager of the New York Yankees, former president of the International League and the man who, as manager of the Boston Red Sox, turned Babe Ruth into an outfielder.

It was a gray bleak day, such as only New York can produce and there wasn't much doing. Barrow was chatting with the baseball writers who gather each afternoon in the Yank office during the off season. He had the averages in his hand, looking through them with a rather bored expression, when suddenly he brightened up.

"Say, fellows, here's a guy that looks like something," he said. "A fellow named Moore. Pitching for the Greenville club in the South Atlantic League. He was in 41 games. Won 30 and lost 4. That's a punk league maybe, but any fellow who wins 30 games and loses only 4 in any league is worth having a look at."

Barrow reached for a telegraph blank and the offer of a contract for Moore was on the way to the Greenville club.

Moore was signed for $2,500 a year and he reported in great glee. He told Miller Huggins, manager of the club, that he could throw a sinker and proceeded to prove it to Huggins' satisfaction. He had control and he had baseball savvy.

"You're my relief pitcher," Huggins told him and he was thereby given the job as the Yanks' chief undertaker. And how he filled the job! He worked in 50 games during the 1927 season and he was credited with winning 19 games and charged with the loss of only seven.

His sinker had the whole league fooled. The batters couldn't smack it out of the infield. They all hit the ball on the top and it bounded down on the turf. Not many winning runs are scored when a ball is dumped down near the hands of a good infield.

Toward the close of the season when Moore was being heralded all over the circuit as the winner of the pennant for the Yankees, the big farmer went bashfully into the office of Mr. Barrow and asked for a raise.

"Don't you think I could get $500 more on my contract? I'm only gettin' $2,500, you know," he said to the business manager. "I think you are worth a little raise. Bring in your contract tomorrow and we'll fix it up," Barrow told him.

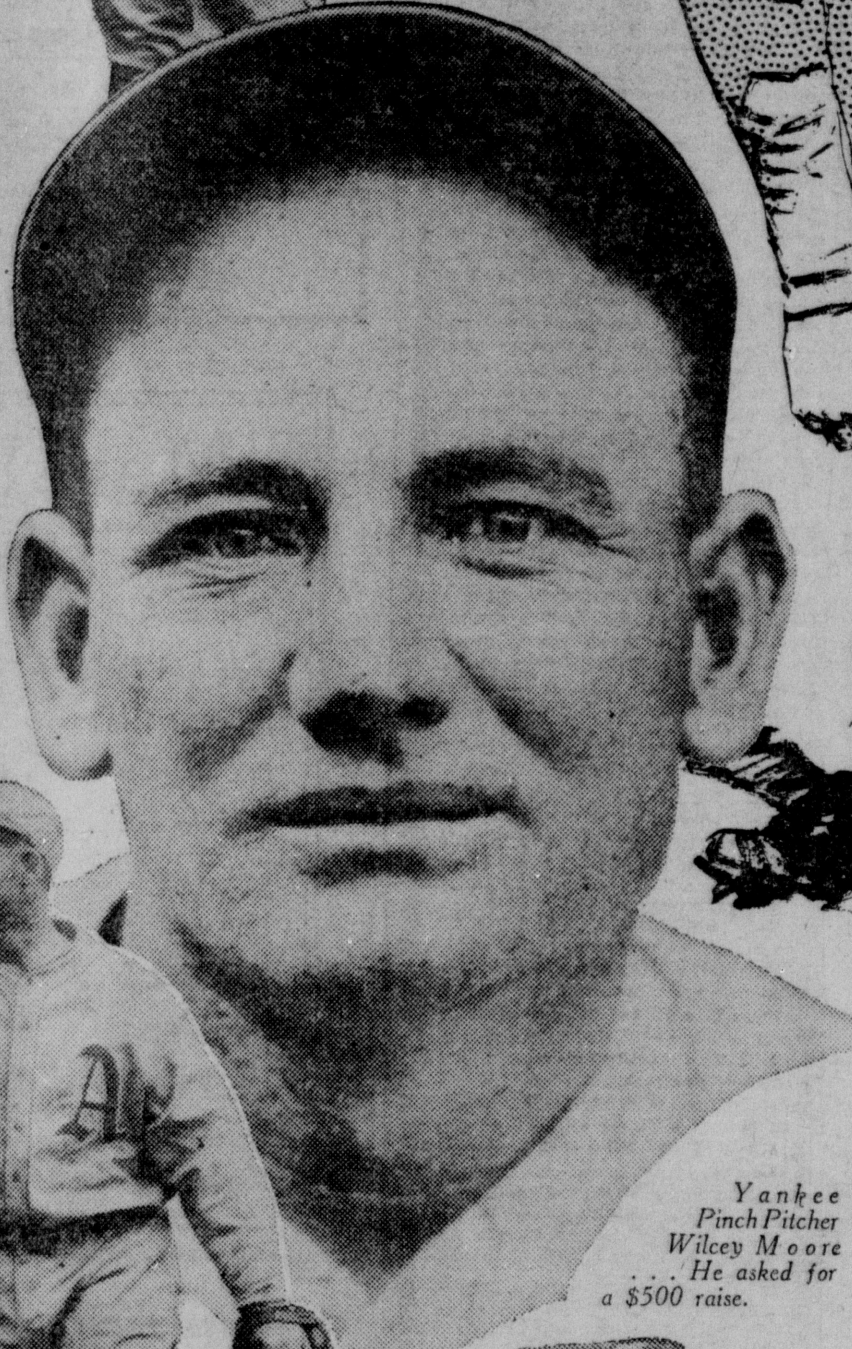

Moore brought his contract in a few days later and Barrow tore it up and tossed it into the waste paper basket. He Yankee Pinch Pitcher Wilcey Moore . . . He asked for a $500 raise.

Athletic Ed Rommel . . . He smiles less since Connie Mack made him an undertaker.

handed him a new one and it called for $5,000. The pitcher nearly passed out from surprise.

Moore also collected another $500 on a bet with the Babe.

Moore was, by his own admission, a hick when he reported to the Yankees and the older players on the club jockeyed him about his awkward style at the bat.

"I'll bet you $500 to $10 that you don't get five hits all year," the Babe kidded him.

"You're on," Moore said, taking him up. Moore won the bet. He did even better than hit five singles. He hit six.

WILCEY MOORE has picked up some philosophy from his experience on the undertakers' bench.

"It's the change in the game and the difference in the ball and we have to keep up with the times," he said.

"I ain't squawking because I've been a relief pitcher. That's what I was hired for. Sometimes you get discouraged, though. I've been in the game for 14 years and I've pitched around 30 regular games a year and 300 a year in the bull pen. The up and down from the bench is heavy exercise in itself."

The magnificent relief work of "Firpo" Marberry was one of the big factors in the victories of Washington in the 1924 and 1925 pennant races.

A big strong fellow with a great fast ball, Marberry was thrown in 50 ball games in 1924 and 55 in 1925. He won 11 and lost 12 in 1924 and won 8 and lost 6 in 1925. But the figures don't show his value. He saved many a game that went to the credit of the starting pitcher who was in distress when he was sent to the rescue.

Bucky Harris had ageing pitchers in those years and he figured if they could go seven innings, "Firpo" could be sent in with a blazing fast ball and that "Firpo" was strong enough to bear down on every pitch. His theory worked. But "Firpo" hasn't been a success as a starting pitcher.

Harris has changed his policy this year. Perhaps because he has younger and sounder pitchers in Detroit than he had in Washington.

Unlike most of the other managers he doesn't send a squad of undertakers to the bull pen when the game is about to start. His theory is that it destroys confidence in the man pitching when he sees balls flying back and forth between two or three pitchers and a couple of catchers in the bull pen.

"I don't want to warm up a relief pitcher until I am almost certain that the pitcher working isn't going to be able to go through. When I see a pitcher wobbling I sneak a relief pitcher out to the bull pen."

Some of the managers prepare so far in advance that they send the whole pitching staff, regulars and all, to the bull pen before game time and make them warm up for exercise. The Brooklyn ball club went to the extreme of erecting an awning over the bench in the bull pen.

A baseball undertaker's job isn't relished. Especially when the undertaker has to work as a regular pitcher. Too much work wears out arms and pitchers have to depend largely on their arms.

ED ROMMEL, several years ago, was the leading pitcher on the staff of the Philadelphia Athletics, but he fell into a slump and Connie Mack made a relief pitcher out of him last year.

Rommel beamed and moaned about it all summer, but when the boss told him to go in with the winning run on third base and none out he had to go.

"I make just one slip and there goes the ball game," Rommel said. "And then the papers say—that bum, throw him off the ball club—and I'll ask you to watch that if every time an undertaker goes in there isn't a tough batter up there."

Waite Hoyt made the same complaint last year. He was the leading pitcher on the Yankee club when the champions went into a late season slump that almost cost them the pennant. Hoyt was working in his regular turn and also doing undertaking duty about every other day. There is nothing funny intended about this because Hoyt happens to be a genuine moutician by profession.

"I'm working for the world series dough," Hoyt said. "But what credit do I get if I throw my arm out working overtime? None."

Rommel came back in form this year and has been used as a starting pitcher. The Athletics' undertakers are Yerkes, Shores and old Jack Quinn.

Quinn is still a starting pitcher but he is getting old and his age tells in hot weather. He has such marvelous control and so much baseball wisdom that Connie Mack has been using him for the tough spots when the other guys get to hitting the fast balls of his star pitchers.

There are two young fellows on the Athletic club who were assigned to the role of undertakers—Yerkes and Shores.

"I didn't pick them up as relief pitchers but there is no other job for them," Mack said in the spring training camp. "They have deliveries however that will make them valuable relief men. My best pitchers are fast ball throwers and when they get into trouble you have to have something else to throw at them. I wouldn't want you to say that these boys are undertakers because it might hurt their feelings, but the fact remains that I'm figuring on them for that alone."

Mack, several years ago, dug down into the minors and pulled up old Joe Pate just because he had been around a while and knew things. All Joe had to do was go in and save ball games, and not walk the batter with the bases filled and the winning run on third base. Joe was the sensation of the season, but his arm wore out and he went back.

ONE of several weaknesses that the new owners of the Cleveland club found in the Indians was relief pitching. In the rebuilding of the club the management last winter scanned the minors for a pitcher who knew what it was all about and who could put the ball within sight of the plate.

They picked up Jim Zinn from the American Association. No doubt he was glad to get back into the big leagues even as an undertaker. Lots of old-timers think it is a soft job. But Zinn's arm went bad on him and the Cleveland manager was forced to start using his regular pitchers when the emergency came.

Bucky Harris has been using Lil Stoner as his star undertaker. Stoner has been with the club since 1924. Last year he was in 36 games, winning five and losing eight.

In mid-season this year he had been tossed into 22 games, winning two and losing three.

Figures like these do not put a fellow in the hall of fame. The managers, however, know the value of a good undertaker. And most of the undertakers assume this attitude:

"Well, there ain't much glory in it. But the old pay check comes around just the same."

THERE is another type of pitcher, getting his hire in these days, who is a different type of an undertaker.

The Cubs had one last year and so did the White Sox. The Cubs had Henry Gramp, Jr., a 24-year-old boy from New York, who did nothing but pitch during batting practice. The White Sox had Danny Dugan, a 22-year-old boy, who had the same unfortunate job.

Their duty was to imitate the deliveries of the pitchers who were expected to work for the opposing side. Their daily workout lasted just an hour and then they could leave the ball park.

It was a soft job, the other players thought, to get away from the park at 2:30. No starting work. No relief work. Just a little labor after breakfast. Finally the management of the two clubs decided that the two young men would have to hang around the ball park during the game and await the call for more work. But they haven't been used.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
Connie Mack pulled a wise crack that was unsuspected in the dignified old fellow... An interviewer asked him what it took to make a pennant-winning team... And without a smile he said: "It takes years, young man."... And Joe McCarthy, manager of the Cubs, pulled a fast answer to a dumb question when a reporter asked him if he had any particular plans to keep his team in the lead for the rest of the season... "Yep," Joe said. "An elegant plan. Just keep on winning ball games."... And McCarthy will not allow his players to mention the word pennant... The Pittsburgh players have told other players they're scared they won't finish second... And the players on all the other clubs are ready to say that the Cubs are in.

THEY'RE ALL HARD JOBS
Harry Hellmann, the genial and popular Detroit outfielder, was asked recently which one of the three outfield positions was the hardest to play.
"They're all about the same," he said. "There are exceptions, though, in a park where there is a sun field that is particularly bad."

"The ball players say that right field is the place for a looper and that they put the worst outfielder in right because he can do the least harm there. Perhaps that's the reason I have been kept in right field for nine years."

ANOTHER TALE EXPLODED
Hellmann also makes the interesting statement that outfielders do not shift on the catcher's signals for certain pitches.
"In this day of the lively ball what use is there to shift around for a fast ball or curve?" he said. "The only thing the outfielder can do is to lay back and trust in fate."
"Of course there are certain batters you can play. We go to the foul lines for Ruth and Gehrig, and move away from it for Gehrig."

PLAY THEM CLOSE
"We play in close for a line drive hitter like Charley Jamieson, Bishop and Durocher. You have to play those fellows short because when they hit, you have to be on it or it will be through you for plenty."
"Ruth is a pull hitter, and so is Gehrig. You can figure fairly well how to play them. Gehrig is not a pull hitter. You never can tell where he is going to hit."
"Simmons and Fox are straightaway hitters, but they hit so hard you can't get them even if you are right in the alley. Two of the toughest batters in our league to handle are Joe Judge and Joe Sewell. You can't guess either one of them. They won't hit a bad ball and when they hit a good one you never know where it's going."

JIMMY FULL OF REASONS
"Jimmy Fox sure is a modest, retiring kid, isn't he?" we remarked recently in the presence of some of Connie Mack's players.
"Yeah," one of them answered. "He doesn't think any more of a base hit than his upper lip of teeth. When he doesn't get a hit he can think of more reasons than the oldest player in the league."

"Early in the season when he would pop up or strike out he would come back to the bench and make the fellow sitting next to him move over. And then he would pour words into the old man's ears that if he had been an eighth of an inch closer he would have knocked down the flag pole."

MAKES 'EM DRINK WATER
"He got such a habit of moving in close to the old man that we arranged a system. Whenever he doesn't get his hit and comes back to the bench the fellow who happens to be sitting next to the old man gets up to take a drink of water and Jimmy moves right into the open spot and explains to the old man why he didn't get a home run."
"Jimmy doesn't say much on the field and he doesn't strut, but he thinks plenty and plenty about those hits."

TUESDAY NIGHT IS FIGHT NITE!
IN SANTA ANA.

HELEN WILLS, MOLLA MALLORY MEET Stars Get Last Minute Game, Play Tonight

CITY LEAGUERS OF LONG BEACH TO SHOW HERE

Breaking a week's idleness and indecision, the Santa Ana Stars will return to their home in the Bowl at Sixth and Olive streets tonight for one more exhibition contest before opening their five-game series with Whittier here Monday.

Dates Changed For Series With Whittier

Changes in dates for the five-game series between Santa Ana and Whittier were announced today by the Commission of the Santa Ana Night Baseball association, which yesterday approved the contests.

The series will open here Monday night, instead of Wednesday. The second game will be played at Whittier the following Wednesday, September 4, and the fifth, if necessary, the following Friday. There will be no game Labor Day.

Acorns, Anaheim, Arlington, Riverside, Colton, Pomona or Pirrone's Nite Hawks. None of the clubs mentioned were able to accept the bid here, most of them already having games scheduled.

REVENGE BARED AS RACE PLOT MOTIVE

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Investigators from the state's attorney's office today continued their examination of the stable hands caring for the race horse, Click, victim of a sponge plot at Hawthorne track Wednesday, but admitted no evidence of a gambling coup has been uncovered.

Because of the small sum wagered on the race when the favorite ran next to last due to a sponge stuffed in one nostril, and the fact that not a cent of come-back money was laid in the mutuels, the theory of a revenge motive is given countenance.

An ordinary sponge as is used about stables was taken from Click's nose, while in similar cases professional crooks have used a silk sponge.

Horsemen pointed out, however, that it must have required two or three men for the act.

Norelius Is Favorite In Swim Grind

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 23.—As 47 women lined the sea wall at the Canadian National Exhibition ground here today on the start of their 10-mile swim—the first of this year's Wrigley marathon for the championships of the world—one of them, a young lass bearing a nationally known name but who is competing in her first marathon, was conceded as having the best chance of all.

EASTERN GRID TEAMS 'POINT' FOR FAR WEST

BY FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)
NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The football groups in the East, already lining up for another season, are looking with new respect towards the West this year, for memories of decisive defeats at the hands of Pacific Coast eleven in the big games of 1928 still linger.

Already coaches of teams which once considered their inter-sectional games as something outside the regular schedule are discussing ways and means of pointing for these engagements with far western eleven.

A coach no longer can tell his alumni about the victories over rivals close at hand, now that the breaking down of barriers has placed emphasis upon the inter-sectional contests. New York university, for instance, cannot boast of its "championship" eleven and then be trampled by an opponent from Oregon or Nebraska.

Superiority Demonstrated
The superiority of the far western brand of football was demonstrated last winter, despite the distressing experience of California on New Year's Day. The East, football fans as well as experts, now look forward to the late season, inter-sectional games as definite objectives.

"Chick" Meehan, coach at New York university, will have to get along without the mighty Ken Strong. All-American half-back, this fall, but Chick has picked few "set ups" for his Violet warriors.

N. Y. U. is not meeting the Oregon Aggies in a return game this year, so that is something Meehan and his assistants need not worry about. But the Violet has a stiff schedule for all that.

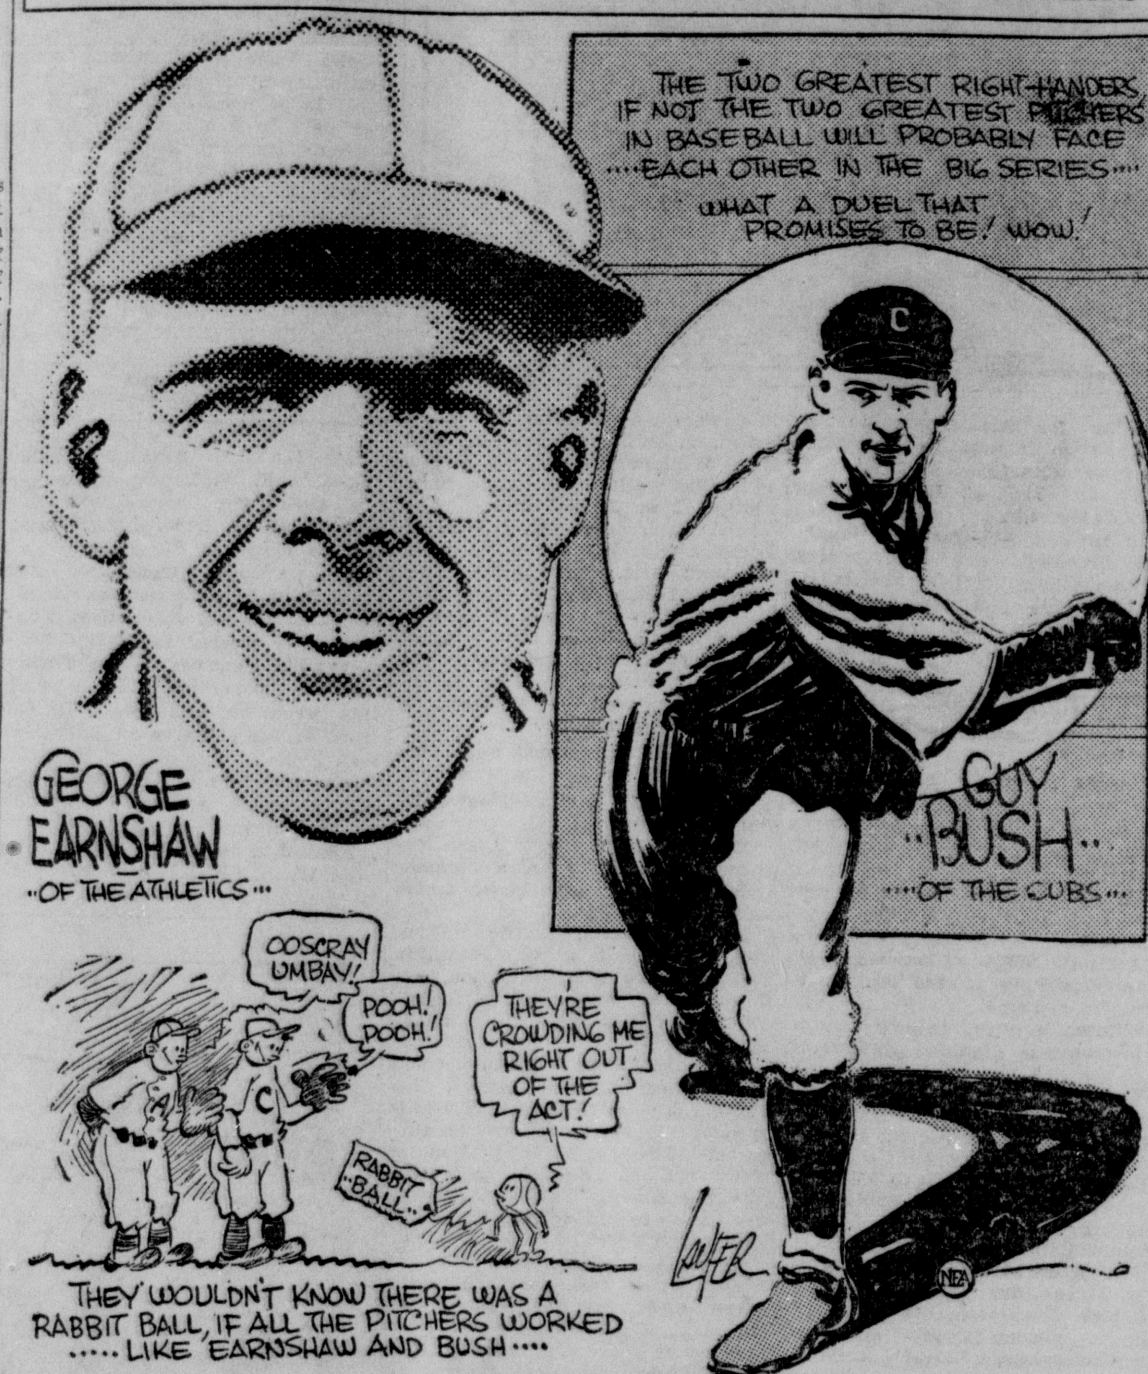

Any eleven called upon to meet Penn State, Butler, Georgetown, Georgia and Missouri on successive Saturdays will know it has been to the football was before it is through. After which, all N. Y. U. has to do is to tackle the Skibos of Carnegie Tech on Thanksgiving Day.

Loss Flock of Stars
In addition to Strong, the Violet has lost the services of Al Lassman, Archie Roberts, Bob Barabee and Ed Hill, to mention only a few of the stars who will twinkle no more in Meehan's galaxy.

The outstanding eleven of 1928 from the viewpoint of achievement was Georgia Tech.

Bill Alexander, head coach of the "Golden Tornado" which swept undefeated across gridirons from coast to coast, will have the nucleus of another good team this fall. But it is doubtful if he can repeat last season's achievement.

GREAT MOUND BATTLE LOOMS FOR SERIES

By WERNER LAUFER
(NEA Service Sports Writer)
George Earnshaw of the Philadelphia Athletics and Guy Bush of the Chicago Cubs, the two greatest right-handers, if not the two greatest pitchers in baseball today, will probably come face to face in the world series this fall.

That is, of course, if the Cubs and A's go through with their present purpose of running away from the rest of the teams, which at mid-August seems almost a foregone conclusion.

Where do we get that two greatest pitchers stuff? How do we figure these guys ahead of Lefty Grove, Earnshaw's teammate, and Burleigh Grimes of the Pittsburgh Pirates? One moment, while little Peaches changes her costume and we shall attempt to explain.

Lost But Two Games
A glance at the records will tell you who is doing the most effective pitching job in the National league. Up until very recently Bush had lost but two games, although he had appeared in 34 contests. Of these, he had won 15, which indicates that winning 20 games will be a dead cinch for "Mississippi Guy." And the 30 mark is by no means out of his reach when you consider that as a rule Bush is a late starter and usually does his best work at the bag end of the grind.

He was a very good pitcher last year. And plenty good the year before that. But Guy has been constantly improving his percentage and he should be in full stride when the bell rings for the series. Of course, always keep in mind that the Cubs must win the pennant first.

Earnshaw's case is more sensational. He was not expected to bear the brunt of the work when the season started. He had only joined the Athletics in mid-season last year, and although Connie Mack said he was a very bright prospect, little did anyone figure he would take the play away from Grove and Walberg, the two great southpaws.

Grove, Walberg Experts
That is just what the big boy has been doing. Grove and Walberg have been going like two left-handed houses in full blaze. For that matter they are still going well enough and are not causing Connie Mack and sleepless nights. But in recent games both have had bad spells.

Earnshaw, meanwhile has run his string of victories higher than either of the two left-handers. And a prediction comes from two smart, observing American league officials that Earnshaw will go better than either Grove or Walberg in the remaining games of the season.

They also say that there is no gamier guy in baseball than the big buck-toothed, fast-ball artist, Mickey Cochrane and Cy Perkins, the Athletics' catchers, think and have stated their belief that Earnshaw has even more speed than "Lefty" Grove. Watch Earnshaw go in the big-dough games if the Athletics do not blow.

Santa Anans Cinch 20-30 Club League

Santa Ana today had possession of the night baseball championship of the Southern California 20-30 Club league. Its 9 to 8 victory over Riverside, at Riverside last night, assured the local organization of the title after a series of eight games in which Santa Ana was never defeated.

Riverside had a chance to tie the locals for the title by winning and threatened to do so in the late innings but Eddie Cox, Santa Ana pitcher, managed to hold his opposition off.

Santa Ana's lineup: Cox, p; Trickey, c; Prindle, 1b; Robertson, 2b; McIlvaine, 3b; Finley, ss; Louderback, lf; Westgate, cf; Ewert, rf.

Generally regarded as the best balanced team that ever has preceded to victory in the Santa Ana night baseball race, the Tiernan Typewriter company Kids today owned without argument the City league championship for 1929.

They got away in the Bowl last night when they outlasted the Santa Ana Ice company in a 9 to 8, 10-inning thriller, that finished the season for the local leagues.

The Tiernans established a record never before equaled in the City league. They went undefeated through 10 official games.

Have Punch in Pinch
While their hard-earned triumph over the fighting Icemen was neither as decisive nor as impressive as many of their others this year, the Tiernans, nevertheless, showed they had enough punch to win even when the going got tough. They proved the same thing last week when they beat the El Corral Cowboys in 12 innings after running behind most of the way.

The Tiernans had a comfortable lead through most of their affray and appeared certain of victory until Walter Jordan their ace pitcher, blew up with a loud report in the eighth and ninth. Jerry Heard, who tolled for the Icemen, rapped a home run with one on in the eighth and his mates continued the attack on Jordan in the next round, marking four times and tying the score at 8-8.

George Lackaye, the Tiernan field general, took Jordan out for a pinch-hitter in the last of the ninth and "Bono" Koral worked the tenth, receiving credit for the victory when the Tiernans broke through on Heard in the last half of the stanza.

Dugger Breaks Up Game
Bill Dugger broke up the game. Leavitt Daley opened the Tiernan tenth with a sharp single to center, his third safety of the evening. He took second on Bill Middlebrook's infield out, third on a wild pitch and scored easily when Dugger cautioned a line single off the bag at third base.

The Icemen got a run in the first inning when Speed singled, took second on an infield out, third on a wild pitch and scored on Roy Heard's single. The Tiernans tied the score in their half, Pea beating out a bunt and going all the way around on wild pitches while the next three batters were going out in order.

Nelson opened the second with a single and Miller walked. Nelson was flagged stealing third, Miller pulling up at second. He went to third on a wild pitch and scored on Blower's single.

Singles by Daley and Middlebrook, Dugger's fielder's choice and Miller's error on Adams' slow roller gave the Tiernans two in the fourth and the lead for the first time.

Tiernans Busy Again
The Tiernans got busy again in the sixth, making three runs which put them ahead, 6 to 2. Daley went to second when Swisheim muffed his long fly, advanced to third on a wild pitch and scored on Middlebrook's sacrifice fly. Dugger then singled and raced home on Ed Adams' triple. Adams scoring an instant later on Johnston's line drive to center.

CHAMPION AND FORMER QUEEN AGAIN RIVALS

BY WILLIAM J. DUNN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
FOREST HILLS, L. I., Aug. 23.—The reigning queen and a former ruler, who hopes to return to the throne, met today in a climatic battle at the West Side Tennis club.

Helen Wills, whose goal is her sixth national women's title in seven years, and Molla Mallory, who would like to extend her great list of American triumphs to nine, were the principals in a match of unusual interest.

Back in 1923 a sturdy little girl from the Pacific Coast faced the great Mrs. Mallory in a match that was to decide the championship of the country. That match ended with a victory for the older woman, 6-3, 6-1. Experience was too much for the youthful California girl.

The following year, on the same courts and on the courts where they met today, the same pair was opposed again. Helen, this time was a bit larger and stronger and her game had improved accordingly.

She literally smothered Mrs. Mallory with her terrific services, drives and volleys, winning her first national title by a score of 6-2, 6-1.

Today it was Mrs. Mallory again who stood between Helen and her chances of another national championship. The odds are all with Miss Wills.

The terrific battle Mrs. Mallory waged in upsetting Great Britain's best, Miss Betty Nuthall, in the quarter-finals yesterday, served only to stamp the former champion as a dangerous opponent.

The second semi-final match, bringing together Mrs. Phoebe Watson of Great Britain—the sole survivor of five English stars who started this tourney—and Helen Jacobs, of California, was regarded as a match for the right to meet Miss Wills in the Saturday finals.

Considerable interest attached itself to this second match, also. Miss Jacobs, runner-up to Miss Wills for the title last year, and for the British championship at Wimbledon this summer, must beat the woman who bested her in the recent Wimbledon cup matches before she can hope for honors equal or above those of her last two major tournaments.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 23.—William T. Tilden, first ranking American, and George M. Lott, Jr., of Chicago, ranked third, will meet tomorrow in the finals of the 13th annual Newport Casino invitation singles tennis tournament.

Tilden won his semi-final match today with a straight set victory over his 17-year-old protégé, Wilbur F. Coen, Jr., of Kansas City. The scores were 7-5, 6-3, 6-4.

Shortly afterward, Lott eliminated a fellow Davis cup player, John Van Ryn of Orange, N. J., in an extra set match, 6-4, 6-2, 1-6, 6-4.

RICHFIELD OIL JONES TO PLAY TEAM DEFEATS PUBLIC MATCH TITLEMEN. 5-2 WITH AMATEURS

The Richfield Oil company today was still technically tied with the Dennis Printers and the Shell Oil company for the leadership of the Santa Ana Twilight league following its 5 to 2 victory over the talented Orange County Title company in the Bowl yesterday.

Mitchell, the Titlemen's slinger, gave the Oilers plenty of trouble for five innings and another unexpected upset appeared in the making but the pitcher collapsed in the sixth, allowing five hits and three winning runs.

Day, Devine, Lawrence, Hellman and Marston bunched base knocks in this round to keep the Richfield group in the running.

Mitchell's double and Curren's single gave the Titlemen a run in the second. Richfield took a 2 to 1 lead in the fourth when Landell's walked and Hellman and Marston doubled. The Titlemen tied the score in their part of the sixth, Gilbert drawing a pass and Leavitt bunting home with a double.

The American Legion Bugle and Drum corps met the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company in today's game which was to conclude the fifteenth week of the Twilight league season. The score: Title company 5, Richfield Oil 2.

TIERNANS CAPTURE CITY LEAGUE FLAG

back at Jerry Heard that almost tore the southpaw's fingers off.

Meanwhile, Jordan had been breezing through the Iccemen inning after inning without trouble but he began to wobble in the eighth which Speed opened with a single. Jerry Heard followed with a hefty home run to left, making the score 8 to 4.

The Tiernans got these back in their half, however, and were still four runs to the good after singles by Daley and Middlebrook. Dugger's sacrifice fly, Adams' walk and several wild pitches had accounted for two tallies.

Jordan "blew" in the ninth. Miller opened with a single and Blower drilled another safety, his third of the tilt. Jones, batting for Arnold, popped out but Speed was safe on a fielder's choice and successive doubles by J. Heard and Jim Coulson produced four runs and an 8 to 8 score.

The Iccemen went scoreless through the tenth and the Tiernans clinched the championship in their half, as related earlier.

THESE CHAPS STAR IN TWO LINES OF SPORT

Great athletes seldom star in more than one sport. Jim Thorpe was an exception, of course, and there have been flocks of college athletes who have won letters in two and three sports. But the athletes who are good enough to get into national championship competition are few. In the national amateur golf championship this year there are three of them entered. Tilly Shafer, star baseball player with the New York Giants years ago; "Red" McLoughlin, one of the greatest tennis players of all times, and "Dink" Templeman, a great track star in his day and now coach of the Stanford team.

Plan Monument For Lowly Prune

SAN JOSE, Aug. 24.—The lowly prune at last is coming into its own.

Plans to perpetuate the prune in granite are being seriously discussed by the city planning commission, as the result of recommendations by Councilman Joseph Brooks.

The monument would be in honor of Louis Pellier, the Frenchman who brought the first prune to Santa Clara Valley. Governor Young, it was suggested, could be brought here for the affair, along with the French consul, making it the occasion for a real celebration.

260 Date Trees Planted In South

EL CENTRO, Aug. 24.—Commercial date growing in the Imperial valley has advanced this season through the purchase of 260 Sady date offshoots by 12 valley ranchers.

These offshoots were purchased through the encouragement of the Imperial Valley farm bureau, the agricultural extension service, as this variety gives promise of being especially suited to local conditions, and as offshoots were distributed at reasonable cost under government contract the ranchers were enabled to plant under the normal cost.

MANY CHANGES MADE IN STATE VEHICLE LAWS

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 24.—Including scores of changes of vital interest to every motorist in the state, California's new motor vehicle act became effective August 14.

The new act represents months of study by officials of the division of motor vehicles, safety groups and other interested bodies and is regarded by Governor

Young as one of the outstanding accomplishments of the 1929 legislature.

Outstanding in importance

among the provisions of the new act was the creation of the California highway patrol, a change that will put all traffic squads

now operating as independent county units under a central head, completely controlled by the state.

BREA, Aug. 23.—Adelbert Andrew, Brea-Olinda Union High school graduate, was awarded the only freshman scholarship offered by the Alumni Association of the California Institute of Technology, Pasadena.

Out of more than 400 boys taking entrance examinations at Cal-Tec, 30 have been voted a chance at the coveted scholarship by their own student body. From these 30, nine entered the finals on points won in the examinations, the selection of the one to receive the scholarship being made at the alumni banquet last night, when each contestant was called upon to address the body.

The scholarship covers all tuition, book and laboratory fees, and equals a cash value of $300. It is awarded by the alumni each year on a basis of 60 per cent competitive examinations, 20 per cent high school record and activities, and 20 per cent impressions on the alumni, including one five-minute talk. Besides being prominent in all school activities during his two years at Brea-Olinda, Adelbert is an Eagle Scout with 27 merit badges to his credit. S. A. WOMAN'S FATHER KILLED ON POLICE DUTY

Receipt of a telegram to the effect that Peter Holt, city marshal in Livingston, Mont., and father of Mrs. Fred Meyer, of 120 East Twentieth street, had been murdered, resulted in the departure last night of Mrs. Meyer and her mother, who was visiting here, for the Montana city.

According to the message, Holt was shot and killed as he sat in his office in the city hall in Livingston. Another man met his death at the same time.

Funeral services were scheduled to be held upon the arrival of the mother and daughter.

The killer walked into Holt's office and demanded that Holt collect a $5 bill for him. Holt replied that his office did not collect accounts and gave him directions for filing a complaint. The man then whipped out a gun and fired at Holt and a traffic officer sitting in his office. Another man escaped death when the killer's gun jammed.

The murderer was overpowered by city firemen, attracted to the office by the shots, and placed in jail.

MRS. R. A. CUSHMAN DEFENDS CRIMINAL TRIAL ALIENISTS IN ARTICLE IN 'MENTAL HYGIENE'

"Any number of cases might be cited, any number of text-books on psychiatry quoted as evidence of the professional harmony existing between alienists testifying at trials," declares a Santa Ana woman attorney, Mrs. R. A. Cushman, in an exceptionally well-written and interesting article, "Do Alienists Disagree?" in the current number of "Mental Hygiene," a magazine issued quarterly in Albany, N. Y., by the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, Inc.

EXPECT JELLY, JAM DRIVE TO BE BIG SUCCESS

Reports received by Mrs. Fannie Reeves lead her to believe that this year's drive for jellies, jams and canned fruit for ex-service men and invalid nurses in government hospitals in Southern California will bring forth the largest response in the history of the jelly drives here.

"The offerings of delicacies," said Mrs. Reeves, "are to be left in the American Legion hall, on Birch street, on September 6 and 7. On September 8 they are to be taken by truck to the hospitals."

According to word received by Mrs. Reeves, who is chairman of the Legion auxiliary committee in charge of the drive, there is a great need for jellies, jams and canned fruit.

"They come as extras to the regular hospital fare," said Mrs. Reeves, "and are greeted with great joy by the bed-ridden men. They look on these things as offerings from home. Real home-cooking sounds like a letter from home and home-made jellies and jams come to them like sunshine breaking through the clouds on a sad, gloomy day."

In answering the question asked by her article, Mrs. Cushman cited the storm aroused by a recent kidnapping and murder case in Los Angeles and quotes a Los Angeles newspaperwoman to the point that "People are weary to death of insanity as a defense in murder cases. . . . they believe he is sane and that the effort to prove him otherwise is a ruse to save a neck that is overdue to be cracked."

Correct Interpretation

Mrs. Cushman's article continues with the assertion that the writer in question "is an 'expert' on matrimonial problems. . . . It seems to be a rule of all newspapers never to publish an article on a psychopathic murder case by a bona fide psychiatrist or psychologist. But however little this woman writer may be qualified to pass on the youth's mental state, she at least is correct in her interpretation of the mood of the people, which holds that because one alienist is testifying on one side and another alienist on the other, the alienist is selling his opinion—at least the alienist for the defense. 'For if not, why don't they agree?'"

In making the magazine article an argument that such alienists do agree on basic facts, the author declares that the alienists themselves are not clear in their own minds as to what the question is upon which they should agree or disagree. She explains that they have not been brought in the courtroom to make a diagnosis of the defendant, but to give an opinion upon a metaphysical question, a question grounded in the realm of mysticism. "Namely, has the accused sinned? If so, did he realize he was sinning? For if he realized it, he ought to be punished."

Considering the fact that the law admits of insanity as an excuse for wrong doing, but does not recognize such terms as moron, imbecile or idiot, Mrs. Cushman points out the difficulty of securing complete agreement among several alienists and psychiatrists, the most conscientious of whom would feel that a defendant, even with the mind of a child in a man's body, would know that the acts were wrong. She quoted as an authority, "Crime, Abnormal Minds and the Law," by Dr. Edward Huntington Williams and Ernest Hoag: "The knowledge of right and wrong is no real test of responsibility; what is a test is the ability to act on such knowledge. Even young children possess the knowledge of right and wrong but no reasonable person expects them to always act responsibly." And again, "Most of our courts permit us to hang children of seven years, for no matter what age a man may be, if his mind is that of a child, HE IS A CHILD as far as responsibility goes."

Individual Attitudes

Psychiatrists then might agree as to a person in question being mentally defective, but would modify that agreement by their individual attitudes toward behaviorism, determinism and other abstract theories, upon all of which they might render religious

SANTA ANA MAN GIVEN PATENT ON ROPE HITCH

To Lloyd H. C. Cain, a Santa Ana man, has been issued a patent from the U. S. patent office, in Washington, on a new type of rope hitch.

The hitch is said to be both novel and effective and is primarily intended for use with an automobile tow line to remedy the disadvantages of the present custom of knotting one end of the line about some portion of the car.

Announcement of securing the patent was made through Clarence O'Brien, Washington patent attorney.

and ethical opinions, but not a professional opinion.

"What then, should be debunked?" she asks, "The law or the medical profession? Why has the medical expert been ridiculed and censured and not the law?"

Summing up her arguments, Mrs. Cushman suggests a radical change that she feels will come in time—that of making the matter of segregation of the mentally defective criminal the focus of the trial rather than the matter of his punishment. She replies to her own suggestion however, with the discouraging statement that society is not ready for this change, as it is only slowly emerging for the days when revenge was taken on any inanimate object.

"There would be nothing left for us to punish except, perhaps, our children and our dogs," she states. "We would be in peril of becoming Christians in reality, of feeling sympathy for all mankind, and gradually of understanding human motives; while at present, to feel sympathy for and harbor a desire to understand abnormal behavior is considered a mark of degeneracy, a perversion that should itself be punished."

That students of psychiatry, criminology and the science of human behavior are demanding a change is emphasized by the author, who feels that even "jurors here and there are beginning to study these subjects with a view to applying their knowledge to the human problems with which they are confronted." Slowness of the progress toward betterment is due the inherent love of mankind in seeing punishment bestowed, she contends, pointing out that only a short time (comparatively) has passed since hanging and mutilation of convicted criminals was occasioned for public festivals, "which all the righteous attended."

Second Hand

Now we must get those thrills second hand—through newspaper columns, and "at every fresh assault of science upon their ancient privilege, their right to enjoy a killing without feeling any sense of sin, they meet the attack with rage and ridicule. The expert scientist in league to rob them of their festivals of reading, if not of seeing, is naturally an unpopular personage."

And quoting the aforesaid newspaper writer in her statement that "the public feels that a few hangings would do more to reduce the murder rate than anything the psychologists can devise," Mrs. Cushman closes her thought-arresting article with—"and with this sentiment every psychiatrist will agree. The psychiatrist and psychologist analyze those sentiments. They are not pretty."

AUXILIARY GLEE CLUB WILL SING FOR S. A. ELKS

Their first public appearance as a singing organization since their return from San Diego and the state convention of the American Legion will be made Tuesday night by the Legion Auxiliary Glee club members, when they will take prominent part in the entertainment program to be presented before Santa Ana lodge, No. 794, B. P. O. E., under the auspices of Claude Sleeper, entertainment chairman.

Ever since the Mother's day program presented by the Glee club before the Elks, the latter have anticipated an early return engagement of the singers and since the close of the Legion convention Wednesday, and the honors reaped there by the Glee club, interest in their appearance, Tuesday night, has increased immeasurably. For sweeping everything before them, Cecil Fross Willis, director, and her singers won the state title which carries with it the privilege of representing California at the national Legion convention, in Louisville, Ky., September 30 to October 3.

At their appearance, Tuesday night, the singers will have Miss Ruth Armstrong as accompanist and will be assisted by Miss Georgia Belle Walton, violinist; Caesar D. Clanton, trombonist, and Edward Burns, cellist. It will be remembered that Mrs. Willis, Miss Walton, Miss Armstrong and Edward Burns were four Santa Ana artists who made the Santa Fe entertainment tour a year ago.

In arranging for the Tuesday night program, which will be open to all Elks and will be followed by refreshments, Claude Sleeper today stated:

"I believe I am expressing the sentiments of the lodge members when I say that these girls, together with the artists that accompanied them, presented one of the finest programs at our Mother's day meeting that we ever had the pleasure of hearing in our lodge room. We all are for them, 100 per cent. We think a great deal of them all and will wish them every success at the national convention."

Upon returning from the state convention, Mrs. Willis and her group of singers carried in triumph the two handsome gold cups, one awarded by the state and the other by San Diego, to the best auxiliary glee club in the state. In commenting upon her pride in the work accomplished under her direction, the director declared that "no group of girls ever could have given a director better co-operation than they have given me in our work this year. It is this spirit, combined with hard work, that won for us in San Diego and with which we hope to attain success at the national convention."

But if Mrs. Willis is enthusiastic regarding the work of the chorus members, they are equally so regarding their director and are united in declaring that it is to her tireless efforts that they have attained their success. In perfecting their plans to attend the national convention, the singers feel that they have a three-fold purpose, to represent California, Orange county and Santa Ana, and through their director have voiced the warmest appreciation for the encouragement and aid offered them throughout the county, especially by Legion posts and veterans' organizations.

SANTA ANA MAN HURT WHEN HIT BY AUTO

L. S. Standing, 61, of 515 East Fifth street, received cuts and bruises yesterday when the bicycle he was riding was struck at the intersection of Fifth and Main streets by a car driven by C. Ross Atherton, of rural route No. 1, Orange. The injured man was taken to the office of a physician, where his injuries were dressed.

Atherton, in his report filed with the police, stated that three other cars were approaching the intersection and that he had slowed to about 15 or 20 miles an hour. His view of the man on the bicycle was obstructed by the corner of his car and he did not see him in time to avoid the collision.

Auto And Alleged Thief Being Held In San Francisco

The coupe of M. E. Watson, 1218 Spruce street, South Pasadena, which Seal Beach officers reported stolen to the office of Sheriff Sam Jernigan on the night of August 19, has been recovered in San Francisco, according to a wire received by Sheriff Jernigan from William J. Quinn, chief of police.

Chief Quinn is holding in custody Vennie Stelner, who, he states, admits he stole the car.

Sheriff Jernigan said today he would send Lloyd Fuller, deputy, to San Francisco for the car and the alleged thief.

M'CORMICK, GRANDCHILDREN

Here are Harold McCormick, millionaire harvester king, and his two grandchildren, Anne and Peter Oser, children of Max Oser, the Swiss army major, whose marriage to McCormick's young daughter caused a flutter in international society. McCormick and Mr. and Mrs. Oser and children are dividing their time between Laguna Beach and Santa Barbara.

FILM CONTEST EDITOR KEPT BUSY AS ENTRIES POUR IN

Keen competition is expected in the Santa Ana Movie Club Story contest, now in its first week. The contest will run three weeks, closing September 7, leaving only 15 days for Orange county authors to submit manuscripts. Entries already are being received at The Register office and weeding out of unsuitable plots will begin soon.

Although the prize list has not yet been made public, club officials promise that there will be no disappointments as an unusually attractive array of prizes will be offered as well as the national recognition that will go to the author of the story which will be entered in screen form in several nation-wide contests.

A last minute announcement, made today by Ted Newcomb, Movie club president,

NO OPPOSITION TO SEPARATION PLAN REPORTED

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 23.—A check-up yesterday of petitions asking for the formation of a harbor high school district showed that a majority of the heads of families in this city already have signed, according to estimates of officials. Circulators were continuing to secure further names, however, and expected to have 75 per cent of the heads of families signed by the end of the week.

No opposition has been reported and it is only a question of reaching the eligible signers. There are 10 petitions out in this city and half a dozen more in Costa Mesa. It is expected that they will be ready for presentation to R. P. Mitchell, county superintendent of schools, by Monday.

Under the provisions of the new amendment to the school code, passed at the last session of the state legislature, the superintendent of schools, if he finds a majority of the heads of families in the proposed high school district have signed the petitions, may call an election within 20 days. If a majority of voters in the district (Newport Beach and Costa Mesa elementary school districts) are in favor, the district is formed, after certain formalities by the school superintendent and county supervisors.

The petitions to be presented to Superintendent Mitchell will be accompanied by affidavits of circulators, who all are signers of the petitions and heads of families.

asks for the incorporation of as many local and county backgrounds in the stories as possible.

"Write your stories so that the scenes may be taken in familiar county backgrounds," he urged. "Scenes taken in and around Santa Ana will add much to the popularity of the picture when it is released in the fall."

Orange county boasts a large number of amateur writers who should enter stories in this contest and a wide and colorful selection is expected. Manuscripts should be mailed to the Santa Ana High School Movie Club Story Contest Editor, care of The Register, and should be but 1000 words or less in length.

Altruistic Circle Is Entertained in Summer Home

For the past four or five years, members of the Altruistic club of the Tustin Pythian Sisters have made their August picnic with Mrs. Howard Wassum in her summer home at Laguna Beach, one of the outstanding social features of their years. This year's party which was held Wednesday, was no exception to the rule, and over 30 members and children motored to the friendly cottage at 812 Ocean avenue.

There they enjoyed the usual beach sports, swim in the surf, or rested under gay umbrellas that dotted the sands like bright-colored mushrooms. At mid-day all gathered around the picnic tables where the most delectable of fare was served from the well-filled baskets. In planning for the entertainment of her guests, Mrs. Wassum had the assistance of Mr. Wassum and also her sister-in-law, Mrs. Mina King together with Mrs. Hazel Harbor and Mrs. Lavinia Penman.

In the merry party were Mr. and Mrs. Wassum and their children, Elizabeth and Bobby Jim; Mesdames Eureka Osbourne, Mabel Henry, Vera Hawkins and son Donald, Nora Melvin, Vera Comer, Gladys Perrozzi and daughter Beverly Jeanne, Jennie Stone and daughter Grace, Hazel Cady and children, June and LeRoy, Josie Bose and daughter Dorothy, Eva Holford, Sarah Matthews, Yvette Shadden and son Tommy, Hazel Harbor and children, Jeannette and Junior, Mina King, Lavinia Penman, and the Misses Margie and Dorothy Penman. Hazel Belle Comer and Genevieve King.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

Jolly Time
A jolly time was enjoyed yesterday, when members of the primary department of the First Methodist Episcopal church, under the supervision of Mrs. R. I. Matthews, superintendent, spent the afternoon at Anaheim park. The happy hours were spent in the wading and swimming pools, after which the children adjourned to the picnic tables, where a lunch was enjoyed.
About 40 teachers, mothers and children were present.

Young Girl Hostess At Charming Affair

Delightfully quaint were the old fashioned decorations used for the pretty bridge party given last night by Miss Virginia Cogan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cogan, at her attractive ranch home near Irvine.

Four bridge tables were arranged on the wide porch where the full moon's light cast a soft glow over the pretty scene.

While tables were being prepared for the delicious supper which was served by the young hostess and her mother, bridge scores were tallied and Miss Marian Cruickshank, high, received a lovely prize, while an equally attractive gift console Miss Winifred Miller.

Vivid Note Struck in Appointments for Bridge Party

Mrs. Cornelius L. Neuschwanger was hostess yesterday at one of the most unusual one o'clock luncheons of the summer, given at her charming home at 620 Cypress avenue.

Numerous bowls of yellow Madame Butterfly rosebuds were used in the living room, and tall gold tapers in silver holders, as well as nutcrackers and other appointments were in harmonious colors.

Following the luncheon, Mrs. Neuschwanger led her guests to her lovely garden, where green flower decked lattice screened off an out-of-doors bridge room. She then presented each with an envelope containing instructions for the amusing game of "earthquake bridge," at which the group passed an enjoyable afternoon. Prizes of balloons, paper caps, and all day suckers added an amusing note to the garden party.

A basket luncheon was served at noon when the children roasted weiners and marshmallows. In the afternoon a series of games was played under the direction of L. W. Archer, summer playgrounds superintendent.

The children were taken to the picnic in Excelsior Creamery trucks.

Former Pueblo Residents Enjoy Gathering in This City

A happy gathering was that which took place in the blue room of Ketter's cafe recently when Mrs. Minnie Ketter, who is a former resident of Pueblo, Colo., entertained a group of former Pueblo friends who are now making their homes in this state or are visiting here.

Harmonizing with the setting were the deep lavender asters which graced the tables and were arranged in artistic fashion about the room. A delicious chicken dinner was served.

Assisting Mrs. Ketter in greeting her guests and in various other duties of the afternoon were Mrs. G. W. Roe and Mrs. Electa Lord Hathaway, both of Glendale.

Of special interest was the presence of Mrs. M. M. Sheets of Long Beach who is 56 years old. Mrs. Sheets entertained the group with many stories having to do with her girlhood and conditions which existed at that time.

CHURCH WOMEN SOCIETY THE HOME WEDDINGS CLUBS FRATERNAL FASHIONS HOUSEHOLD

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

That there is one moral law for men and another for women is one of our most accepted convictions. "The double standard" is heartily believed in despite all protests.

A murder trial is in progress in Columbus, O. The man fighting for his life is a professor in Ohio State University till he was accused of murdering a co-ed, Miss Theora Hix. University authorities really took his job away before this fact was known, and when only his admission that he maintained an apartment with the girl was known.

'NOTHER ONE FIRED

Another member of the faculty who was forced to admit knowing the dead girl not wisely but too well, was also told to look for another job.

The same university issued a statement to the effect that moral rectitude would be demanded from its staff with more searching out of personal lives than ever before.

A state educational association took up the subject declaring that teachers everywhere must submit to an intimate questionnaire and investigation designed to show whether or not their characters would permit them to be teachers.

WHAT'S IT MEAN?

Several questions lurk in this trend of affairs. One wonders if it really means that "the double standard" is being shot to pieces, and that we are demanding the same moral rectitude from men as women; that we are demanding more personal uprightness from everyone, both male and female, or that we simply get excited when things are found out!

It all seems a bit unfair when one knows that this younger man, about to marry another girl who lost his job for admitting his misconduct with the dead co-ed, had doubtlessly performed not a whit differently from a handful of other men on the faculty. But he got found out. They didn't.

"NOSINESS"

Besides, this whole tendency to subject teachers, both men and women, to more personal investigation than workers in any other profession must undergo, can not help but reflect unfortunately to that profession.

The man or woman with the most upright character but with a little dash of pride many a time before he or she will enter a profession which makes so many inroads upon the decent inalienable right to a little privacy.

WOMEN ONLY!

It probably explains right now why teaching has never been considered a man's job, and why so few men are in it. Women have been forced by tradition to accept "nosiness" into their personal affairs without too much protest. Men never have learned, and probably never will. But teaching needs the right sort of men, too. It is preposterous to place all grooving boys in the hands of women teach-

Special! Big Cut in One Way Fares East

In effect August 15 to September 15;
Important Savings Made Possible

IN addition to its regular summer roundtrip reductions to eastern points, Southern Pacific now announces a special, drastic reduction in one-way fares. These fares will be in effect 30 days — for use in coaches and reclining chair cars on fast transcontinental trains.

You can enjoy the speed, comfort and scenic attractions of Southern Pacific's service — at lowest cost. It's the comfortable, sensible way to go when you want to save time and money.

Suppose you are going to Chicago. Regular one-way fare is $79.84. Reduced fare is $52.50. Saving on fare alone, $27.34. Additional saving of Pullman berth cost, $23.63. Total saving, $50.97.

Here are a few samples of these new reduced one-way fares east:

Chicago, Ill. . . . $52.50
Dallas, Tex. . . . 40.00
Des Moines, Ia. . . . 45.10
Kansas City, Mo. . . . 40.00
New York City . . . 83.06
St. Louis, Mo. . . . 47.50

How to Properly Prepare Fish

I have often wondered why we do not eat more fish, and I have come to the conclusion that it is because we are not familiar with proper methods of cooking.

True, we have salmon or halibut steaks fried once in a blue moon, but what of the legion of other fishes available in our own markets which we never even inquire about? A little book has come in to me, prepared by two of the Ritz-Carlton chefs; in it they say this:

"The American housewife cooks her fish too quickly, too long. It must be simmered over a low fire or on the back of the stove, from eight to ten minutes only, according to the thickness of the fish. Then the sauce—ah, that is what gives fish its delightful piquancy!"

Then they describe how to "poach" fillets of fish. They make a vegetable broth out of parsley, carrots, onions and thyme for seasoning. This broth is strained, heated, the fish laid in it to partially cover and gently simmered, much as you would poach an egg. Then this sauce is simmered down, sweet butter (un-salted) is worked in a bowl with the strained broth added little by little so that the sauce is sauce, not just greasy broth. You will see what I mean in the recipe given today.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Fish Fillets Paysanne

4 fish fillets
4 small carrots, diced
4 green onions with tops, diced
1 stalk celery, diced
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
2 1-2 tablespoons sweet butter
Salt and pepper.

Let me set your mind at rest about the "sweet" butter. This is simply unsalted butter, which you may quickly have with ordinary butter by cutting and washing the required amount under the cold tap—but it makes all the difference in the world in the flavor of the cooked fish, so chefs say.

Gently saute the diced vegetables in some butter until soft but not at all brown. Wipe the fillets and place them over the sauted vegetables, add a little vegetable broth or just plain hot water will do, but that's just what it's coming to, if it hasn't already come.

"YOUNG MAY MOON"

Speaking of "nosiness" a charming new book by Martha Ostenso called "The Young May Moon" is a perfect example of what community "nosiness" can do to a human soul. Marcelle Gunther quarreled with her husband, Rolf, one night and ran away from him. By morning she was back, repentant, to find that he had drowned himself. How she attempted to rebuild her life and fight morbid remorse, and how all her fighting was ruined by the town's fiendish curiosity is the interesting theme of the book.

TRAINED NURSE TELLS FRIENDS TO GET SARGON

"I am a trained nurse by profession and am certainly pretty well posted on medicines and treatments. Yesterday I heard from some friends of mine in St. Johns, N. B., Canada, telling me they were sick and asking my advice. I have just answered the letter, telling them to get the Sargon treatment at once.

MRS. SARAH THOMPSON

"I was the victim of the worst kind of neuritis for five years and nothing seemed to give me even temporary relief. I suffered terribly from indigestion and constipation. Finally, I decided to try Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills. Now my neuritis is entirely gone and I never have the slightest stomach trouble. The pills completely relieved my constipation, too, without the slightest nausea or griping.

"I just feel a thousand times better in every way and it is a real pleasure to recommend this wonderful treatment."

The above statement was made recently by Mrs. Sarah Thompson, 1422 East 74th St., Los Angeles. Sargon may be obtained in Santa Ana at the Schramm-Johnson Drug Store.—Adv.

'MODERN MAIDENS' OPENS IN BROADWAY

"Our Modern Maidens," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer sequel to "Our Dancing Daughters," starring Joan Crawford, opened a three-day engagement in the Fox-Broadway theater today.

In "Our Dancing Daughters," Joan Crawford was proclaimed one of the greatest hits of last year and in the picture starting here today her success is just as great.

Miss Crawford is supported by Rod LaRocque, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Anita Page and Josephine Dunn and the story concerns a youthful cult which bargains with the devil for all it can get and cheats the devil of his due if it can.

The picture is not a talking picture, but has sound effect and musical synchronization. It was directed by Jack Conway.

Besides the feature, the program consists of an all-talking comedy, featuring Eddie Cantor, and Charlie Chase's first all-talking comedy, "Leaping Love." A Fox Movietone news reel completes the bill.

do—enough to half way cover the fillets.

Cover them tightly and simmer for eight or 10 minutes. Remove the fillets to a hot platter, sprinkle with minced parsley and serve with a sauce made of the vegetables poured over.

The sauce is made so: Cook the liquid and vegetables down to a little over half. In a bowl have the butter washed and well mashed, add the hot liquid and vegetables, a little at a time and when the sauce is smooth pour it over the fish and serve. Doesn't this sound different, and good?

The sauce and fish have a low total—75 calories—and the portions are four, less than 200 calories each. I have used halibut as the basis of computation because it is a fair average for the non-fatty fish.

Butter icings, the subject of the current leaflet, should be a fascinating one to the woman who loves to serve nicely. Butter icings lend themselves to all sorts of artistic efforts to one who knows how to use a pastry tube.

Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and let me send you a free copy.

Tomorrow we are going to have a sum'shus dessert served au naturel: Stuffed Cantaloupe.

Baseball Picture Week-End Feature At Walker House

All of the comedy of Ring Lardner's two great stories, "Elmer, the Great" and "Hurry" Kane" are combined to make Paramount's all-talking baseball picture, "Fast Company," which will be shown in the Fox-Walker theater tomorrow and Sunday.

Starring Evelyn Brent, Jack Oakie and Richard "Skeets" Gallagher, the picture concerns a home run hitting country boy who breaks into the major league with the New York Yankees. Jack Oakie plays the part. He becomes a sensation in the American league. Gallagher plays the part of the scout who discovers him and who later saves him when he gets mixed up with the gamblers in the world's series.

The picture is strictly comedy. In the cast with the principals are Gwen Lee, Chester Conklin, Sam Hardy and Arthur Housman. Two songs are featured, "You Want Lovin' and I Want Love" and "I Want a Good Bad Time," sung by the composed, Sam Coslow, who wrote "Animal Crackers" and "Was it a Dream."

"The Fall of Eve," featuring Patsy Ruth Miller, and Carl Dane, in "The Voice of the Storm," close a two-day run in the theater today.

Cudahy's Puritan Ham

Finer Flavor because—ripened naturally

Distinguished in name, Puritan Ham is—"First in the Land," because of its finer flavor and greater tenderness. Puritan owes this distinction to the special Cudahy method of curing—"ripened naturally."

This method naturally diffuses the sweet juices of the young meats selected for Puritan, without forcing or hurrying.

The result is likened to fruit tree-ripened compared to fruit artificially ripened. You'll thoroughly enjoy Puritan Ham.

The Misses Mitten

By FANNIE HURST

Illustrated by Austin Jewell

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Humoresque",
"A President Is Born"

THE Misses Mitten kept one of those neighborhood notion-stores that are a panacea for housewives. There, at around-the-corner distance, were needles for that emergency, tape, red-and-white checked gingham to fit a last-minute determination to make kitchen curtains, rubber teething-rings, baby-ribbon and sewing-silks that matched.

Even in the heart of an enormous city, with an elevated railroad banging past its door and the roar of traffic on four sides, the notion-store of the Misses Mitten had managed to become a sort of neighborhood rendezvous. People from the tall surrounding apartment houses, little housekeepers, men whose business brought them home at three o'clock in the afternoon, the youth of the block, had formed the habit of dropping in for a few moments' chat with the Misses Mitten.

THEY were precisely what you would suppose them to be from the nature of the calling and from the name itself. Mitten. Neat-mouthed, neat-minded, neat-bodied little persons who had grown up in the neighborhood, who had inherited the business from their parents and whose faces were stamped with a starved kind of virginity.

Minna was forty and Bella was forty-two and, as is almost inevitably the case in such relationships, the younger, although even slightly so, had kept the fluffier. Minna was like a little kitten. She had a high, incessant little laugh like a small bell ringing. Her pale hair had fuzzy ends and she had the innocent ways of a little girl—she was given to clapping her hands in surprise or tilting her head askance or pouting prettily if crossed.

Bella, who was heavier set and whose brown hair did not friz, had inevitably taken on a maternal attitude toward this kitten sister. She babied her, worried about draughts and diet and her habit of wearing too light clothing in the winter. They were sweet together and a nice example of sisters managing to live harmoniously.

OF course—do not mistake it—there was nothing particularly exhilarating about the lives they lived. Indeed, there had been a time when such a state of nervous depression had settled upon Minna, that Bella, sick with dread, had feared for her sanity. The routine, the dullness, the lack of social opportunity and diversion had done it. Bella herself, when much younger, had passed through the same troubled waters. Their youth had been a shut-up, starveling youth, without any of the gayeties natural to it.

Bella had fought through alone. Minna had fought through to the understanding ministrings of her older sister.

All that was past now. The Misses Mitten, ostensibly at least, had become resigned to the fact that there are gray moths and emperor moths in the scheme of things, and that their role apparently was gray.

And just about this time, there came into the life of Bella, the elder, a good-natured, good-humored, middle-aged bachelor, a retired stock broker who lived in the neighborhood and who liked to while away idle moments in the notion store. With what incredulity these two sisters met the situation is past the telling. Here was something so unforeseen, so outside the pale of hope, so fantastic in its possibilities, that the Misses Mitten, between the two of them, could scarcely scare up the realization to take it in.

Romance was leaning a shy, half-reluctant head into the narrow little world of the Mittens.

The kind of life, that had passed by these two sisters with never a glance in their direction, was slowing as it flowed by their stoop.

It was nothing short of breath-taking to have the shop-door pop open and a florist's boy, carrying a square corsage box, or a long one with the end cut out for still longer rose stems, burst in with the words, "Miss Bella Mitten?" on his lips.

Flowers for a Mitten!

Then too, the new excitements. Concert tickets (three) for Sunday in the Stadium. A two-pound box of nut-filled chocolates every Wednesday night. One Saturday afternoon while Minna remained in the store, Bella and Dodge went shopping. Shopping, mind you, for a black fox neck-scarf which Dodge had seen in a shop window on Madison Avenue and was determined to see around the neck of Bella in order that he might decide if it became her. That was to be his Christmas gift.

A Mitten receiving a fur-scarf Christmas gift from an admirer!

Small wonder that a new excitement purred through that menage. Small wonder that two timid, mouse-brown women, inured to routine and petty pastimes, suddenly found themselves rushing about on feet that scurried.

There was an air, in the tiny household, of some one always about to catch a train. Every opening of the shop door, or ring of the bell, was the occasion for a start or a jump. Every minute held its potential thrill. Its potential heartache.

Bella knew that, and sometimes a fear settled on her, chilling and threatening her. Was her happiness about to cast tragedy over the life of her sister? Well Bella knew the old familiar situation. Two women, grown as they had grown, into middle years, dependent upon each other in a hundred ways. Afraid even to contemplate a life which did not contain the old regime. Women who had missed somehow, the love of men, and who clung to the mutual solace of each other.

Bella knew the dangers that lurked for Minna, and she knew too the dangers that lurked for herself. Mistaken renunciation. Futility of sacrifice under certain conditions. It took courage to realize that. Sometimes there crept into Bella's heart the impulse to cast aside this impending opportunity for happiness, and let her destiny flow along with her sister's. But most of the time Bella kept her courage in hand. Why wreck her own chance of happiness and possibly Myron Dodge's when she was not even sure of achieving happiness by such a renunciation, for Minna.

AND so when Myron Dodge, fifty, hale, hearty, wholesome and astonishingly well-to-do, actually proposed marriage to Bella Mitten across a counter where, for twenty years, she had dispensed needles, spool-thread, invisible hairpins and huck toweling, a heart hurting situation was created.

There enters the familiar complication of an older sister impelled to renunciate, in the name of the younger. And it must be said that Minna, perhaps because she was frailer, fought off, if not in actual words, then with the terror of her manner, this marriage of her sister's. Minna was frightened, desolated, panic-stricken. It seemed impossible that she could go in a world that contained Bella, married.

And the marvel of it is that Bella did not make the stupid sacrifice in the name of sisterly love. After a struggle, it is true, a long heart-breaking one, and with Minna's unspoken attitude making it all the more difficult, Bella decided that the really generous act toward her sister and herself, to say nothing of the man she loved, was to marry Myron Dodge.

It meant heartache, it meant heart-hurt, it meant a residuum of fear and pity in the heart of Bella even as she stood a bride. But deep within her persisted the instinct that not to have married

Myron Dodge would have been one of those purposeless, sentimental sacrifices which in the end only embitter all concerned.

IF there had ever lurked in Bella any fear that Myron might not rise to the occasion of treating his sister-in-law with the pampered indulgence to which she was accustomed, that fear was quickly dispelled.

For the first two years of their marriage, the Myron Dodes travelled abroad, accompanied every inch of the way by the smaller and frailer Minna. And if she had been indulged by Bella, before this marriage, twice that kindness, twice that forbearance was expended in her behalf by Myron. It was his way of paying Bella a tribute he knew would mean most to her.

The three of them finally decided to settle down in a lovely old Sussex cottage in England for a year or so. Life is pleasant there. Almost unbelievably so. Tranquil. Full of beauty and happiness.

Bella never has any regrets over her wisdom in not making the sacrifice in behalf of her sister. Indeed, on the contrary, she often figures pleasantly to herself that, if she had not had the strength to ignore her scruples and make this marriage, Minna, from the fastnesses of the little notion store, would never have met up with Cleveland Aley.

Cleveland Aley is a prosperous squire in Sussex whose attentions to Minna are becoming more and more marked.

Oil Company Prepares For Deep Test At H. B.

EQUIPMENT IS UNLOADED FOR DEEPENING JOB

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 23.—It is conceded in oil circles here that the long awaited deep test of the Huntington Beach oil field is now underway. The Selby-Root interests, holding a 10-acre lease in the northwest part of the field, are moving in machinery and equipment for a redrill and deepening job on the old Selby Root No. 1 well. This well is already 5000 feet deep and below the lower Ashton zone, goal of all wells heretofore started in this field.

Neil Anderson, former field superintendent for Selby-Root interests, is out of the city. Employees of the company here state that their orders are to rig up for deepening and the company is sending them the heaviest equipment manufactured for the rigging up job. They state their orders are simply to drill deeper and that they know nothing of the ultimate depth of the well.

The Selby-Root lease adjoins the Ambassador Oil company lease and the Pacific-American lease on which the Ventura Oil company holds a sub-lease agreement. It also joins the Ventura Oil company holdings. The Selby-Root interests are amply financed for any undertaking they may start it is declared. The company has had wide experience in drilling of wells and is declared one of the strongest and most capable of the minor independent companies.

FACTORIES FOR CITY DISCUSSED BY CIVIC BODY

FULLERTON, Aug. 23.—Possibility of locating aircraft industries in this city and a discussion of the airport were the subjects occupying the attention of directors of the Fullerton Chamber of Commerce at the meeting yesterday in McFarland's cafe.

The option on the 26 acres adjoining the airport on the west expires August 26 and this calls for a price of $20,000 on the property, it was disclosed at the meeting by Harry May, secretary of the chamber.

Without an airport of ample proportions, there will be no inducement to aircraft industries to locate plants in this city, it was decided at the meeting, but no definite action was considered or suggested as to how to protect the airport as it now stands and to preserve it for that purpose.

A large motor manufacturing concern is interested in Fullerton, May declared, and if a good proposition is placed before officials of the company with the airport definitely assured, the firm may locate here, he said.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY MAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

The aviator spun along. His motor sang a whirling song and all the little Tynmites wondered just how long they'd ride. The canvas that they clung to tight was still intact and seemed all right. At times 'twas hard to keep a hold. Their hands appeared to slide.

"Say, I don't care for this at all," said Coppy. "I'm afraid I'll fall. I wish he'd take us down to earth where we'd be safe and sound. Of course we may be safe up here and likely there is naught to fear, but I would feel much better if my feet were on the ground."

"Me, too," snapped Clowzy. "I don't care to stay so high up in the air. The way the motor's humming, I don't think 'twill ever stop. The thing that really frightens me is that we may sail o'er the sea. Supposin' this brave flyer's on a long, long ocean hop."

Said Scouty, "There you go again. You think of queer things now and then that always make us worry. I just hope that you are wrong. Let's just hang on and cease to fret, 'cause we must take what ere we get. The aviator seems real kind. He won't stay up for long."

And then the plane began to drop. At last the flyer planned to stop. "We're getting closer to the ground," cried Carpy. "This is great! If Mister Flyer'll only land, I'll very gladly shake his hand. Just think of being safe again. Why, I can hardly wait."

The plane then took a sudden swoop, which made the Tynmites gaily whoop! The canvas dragged upon the ground and then the airplane's wheels bumped for a moment on the earth, took a hop, and brought the big plane to a stop. The Tynmites were not hurt, though they went right head over heels.

(The Tynmites meet the aviator in the next story.)

Missing Letter Links

Rules

1. In playing golf on the Missing Letter Links the object is to change one word to another in a given number of strokes which is par. For example, to go from TEE to PIN in three strokes sounds hard but isn't: TEE-TIE-PIE-PIN. It's probably more difficult on a real course.
2. Change but one letter at a time and be sure the word you have used is one in good usage.
3. The order of the letters cannot be changed.

THE SIMPLIFIED CALENDAR

We wonder how soon the 13 month year as a simplified calendar will be adopted by the various nations of the world. A national committee on calendar simplification has just reported to Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson upon this very matter.

It appears that the League of Nations had notified the Department of State of its general intention of calling a League conference on calendar reform as soon as enough nations had signified their interest in such a gathering.

This committee favors participation by our government in such a conference, although not favoring any specific plan. This committee, however, said that public opinion in the United States preponderantly favors a 13 months fixed calendar, with each month of 28 days, the month beginning on Sunday. The new month would be placed between June and July, and the 365th day of the year would be dated December 29th, with the suggested name of Peace Day or Year Day and observed as an extra Sabbath. Leap day would be placed on June 29th, and observed as an extra Sabbath or holiday.

There are many arguments in favor of such simplification and probably it will be carried out, but some way or another we will have to see the old landmarks of our calendar destroyed. It is possible that the day will soon arrive when we will have no further need of the doggerel we learned in our childhood, and which we still use on occasion?

"Thirty days hath September,
April, June and November,
All the rest have thirty-one,
Excepting February alone,
Which hath but twenty-eight, in fine,
Till leap year gives it twenty-nine."

The new $10,000 bills bear a picture of Salmon P. Chase, according to a report. This, however, is mere rumor and has not been very generally verified.

BUSINESS CONTINUES GOOD

That unflinching barometer of business, the index of carloadings, continues to show that business is better even than it was last year. The figures for last week were forty thousand ahead of a year ago and over ten thousand over the preceding week. 1,078,695 cars were loaded last week, which indicates an enormous business being done in the country.

And this increase does not tell the whole story. Auto trucks are being used more and more for the transportation of freight, and undoubtedly this measures an increased business. And there seems to be no recession in the business trend. This seems almost abnormal, but it seems abnormal only because we are just beginning to learn that our former system was abnormal. If consumption kept up with production, business would always be good. Defective distribution has been the cause of depressions. The people will consume all they produce if they have the money to buy. But when the profits of production are diverted into the hands of the few rather than the many, we are bound to have depressions.

The new system of averting unemployment by planning public works so that they can be carried on in times when normal business manifests a tendency to slacken is destined to keep up our business prosperity. Mr. Hoover had this in mind for many years, and now that he is president he is in a position to carry out the plans which his foresight has devised. Business is no longer without system. The economic engineer is having his day.

A Belgian blond was arrested in Brussels, charged with having 50 husbands. What a merry life she's been leading.

THE YO-YO TRAVELS EAST

The Yo-yo fad is approaching the east, and is hailed by the New York Times which says that it has swept through New Orleans, the first city east of the Mississippi river to take up the fad, and is rapidly moving eastward, probably carried along by the "drummers."

The modern yo-yo originated with Pedro Flores, a bus boy in a Santa Barbara hotel. Behind the back of the bell captain he whittled out a balanced spheroid which he twirled on a bit of string. It attracted the attention of hotel guests agog for a new amusement and they ordered copies of the simple toy from Pedro. Today the boy has two factories in Los Angeles and the yo-yo fad sweeps eastward.

For the enlightenment of those who, possibly, are too immersed in "contract" to be informed on the origin, mechanism and joys of the yo-yo let them know that the name is said to be of Philippine origin and to mean "come-back." The toy is a bright colored wooden top, a pressed-in sphere, having a groove about its middle about which is twirled a string of plain cord about a yard long. The top is about two and one-half inches in diameter. The yo-yo player looping the free end of the string about the middle finger, with jerks jumps his yo-yo up and down the string.

An endurance record of 121,111 consecutive spins has been established. There are a number of tricks to be played with the yo-yo after a try at the endurance record. We recall that there have been yo-yo contests at the Y. M. C. A. where comprehensive information on the toys can doubtless be obtained.

LABOR REVIEW ON NEW INDUSTRY

As our minds are on the wonderful feats that are being accomplished by the flyers in various sections of the world, it is interesting to note that the Monthly Labor Review of the department of labor this coming month will carry an article on the airplane industry, which shows that from even a labor angle it is of considerable importance in the United States.

Last year there were 22,082 workers in 101 plants making heavier than air machines. New York ranks first with the number of people employed being 4306. California, our own state, is second with 1605 employees, and other states each having more than 1,000 employees are Michigan, Washington, Kansas and Ohio.

The firms engaged in the aeronautic industry were divided between those manufacturing airplanes and the factories making motors. 101 firms make airplanes, and 23 firms are manufacturing motors. This report of the Department of Labor has this comment to make:

"Considering the comparatively short time that airplanes have been manufactured other than in an experimental way, the industry has had a very rapid development, and seems destined to assume material importance in the employment of labor. The industry also gives employment to much labor, both directly and indirectly, aside from manufacturing.

"Factories and hangars must be built; pilots both mail and commercial, must be employed; and schools of instruction are coming into existence. Many mechanics and other ground employees are needed at air fields.

"Employment also is given to persons engaged in the manufacture of the materials (metal, wood, cloth, rubber, etc.) used in the planes. Airplanes also have their effect on the production and consumption of gasoline."

California, by reason of her climate, which will enable the workers to work under the most favorable conditions twelve months in the year with outdoor experimentation, offers undoubtedly the best field for the development of this branch of industry.

There is expected to be a deficit in the Postoffice department again this year, despite proposals of marriage received by endurance flyers.

VACATIONS FOR PRISONERS

According to a new Prussian penal code certain classes of prisoners are to be given vacations. Life prisoners who have been diligent and well-behaved and who are of a good psychological condition are to be given vacations which will keep them in touch with human life and affairs and, it is reported, "mitigate the cruel conditions of their sentences." Much can be said in favor of the plan but whether visitations outside the prison walls for either long or short periods will "mitigate" the bitterness of a prison term is a question. From a psychological angle an individual forced to atone for a crime by a long prison sentence, or even life imprisonment, may well be better off if all connections with the outside world are severed. In time he may forget some of the keenest pangs of his retribution but he can never forget if, when memory of details becomes dim, he breathes again for a period the breath of freedom and the hum of normal society.

How bitter, after the vacation, would be his return to prison! As a part of the punishment its cruelty may well be on a par with one of the torture chambers in an old prison in Holland where is still pointed out to visitors the cell in which prisoners were kept who were very nearly starved while the odors from a nearby kitchen were wafted up to them.

Radio Announcer Has Important Role

Radio has lost one of its most notable announcers—John B. Daniel, aged twenty-nine years, who has been with the National Broadcasting company since 1925. Mr. Daniel had the distinction of having introduced the President of the United States to radio audiences oftener than any other announcer. Millions of persons, all over the land, remember the voice of John B. Daniel as, with vigor, but due dignity, he presented President Coolidge while he was in the White House, and President Hoover, since he has been chief magistrate, in nation-wide radio broadcasts.

There has developed, within a few years, a new and distinct occupation—that of radio announcer. It is an important role. Much of the success of any broadcast depends upon the personality of the announcer and the manner in which he makes his announcements. Several announcers have become nationally noted—even internationally distinguished—since great radio hook-ups have been effected. Californians hold Graham McNamee in high regard, as in every broadcast of the New Year's East-West football classic at the Pasadena Rose Bowl he gives California invaluable boosting by describing the charms of midwinter climate here. Mr. McNamee figures in every important national broadcast.

There is disposition among the thoughtless to scoff at the radio announcer—particularly at the frequent station announcements which are made. It should be remembered that the announcer is required by law to do this. It also should be remembered that frequent announcement of the station broadcasting is a great accommodation to listeners-in. One may tune in immediately after the name of a station has been announced and unless it were announced again soon, might go through the entire broadcast without knowing the identity of the station.

The radio broadcaster performs a delicate, difficult role and the greater number of them do it well.

Friend of the Comics

For all their peculiar "slants" on life and occasional slips in grammar, the people in the comic strips are to be commended for worthy motives. With good nature they stand up under the assaults of their fellows and those of outsiders who have not learned of the joys in following their antics.

A word for the comic characters comes from Dr. Garry Cleveland Myers, head of the department of parental education at Cleveland College. He says: "Perhaps the puzzles and comic strips in the newspapers do more than anything else to keep the child from reading what is undesirable. The sport pages are wholesome. Other children who have athletic interests will read them and parents can stimulate such interest."

It is up to the comic folk to give Dr. Myers a few cheers, or a least a couple of plops and paws.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

THE CATERPILLAR

The caterpillar is replete
Not to exaggerate, with feet.

He also brightly is arrayed
In furs of many a brilliant shade.

And through the summer lolls at ease
In tents he hangs in orchard trees,

From which he fares to strip them clean
Of all their robes of leafy green.

If all the fairy tales were true—
If for the evil that we do

We paid in pangs of woe and pain
Or were incontinently slain,

The caterpillar would not be Upon this earth with you and me

But would have been destroyed betimes
For all his predatory crimes.

Instead he regally is dressed,
His vials are the very best

And while we perish in the strife
He leads a calm and placid life.

Which shows, and you'll perhaps agree
That things ain't as they ought to be.

NOT SUCH A HARD BOILED WORLD

There always seems to be jewellers who believe the word of an actress that her husband will be right in tomorrow and pay for a $50,000 pearl necklace.

A RISING RACE

But yesterday the Chinese were regarded as a backward people. Now they are accused of stealing a transcontinental railroad.

New Methods Of Financing Business

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

Today's method records the sales of millions of shares of stock. Such a volume of sales was unheard of a decade ago. What does this mean?

For one thing, it means that we have discovered a new way of financing business. Thousands of corporations, including most of the large ones, have reduced their bank loans and bonded indebtedness, and in their place have obtained funds through the sale of stocks. Thus they have obtained money from the owners of the business—the stockholders—instead of from creditors.

That is the most notable change in methods of finance since the World War. It has strengthened the industry of the entire country, for it is sounder business to operate on capital than on debts.

A concert which is financed mainly by the sale of stocks is in no danger of being forced—even though solvent—into the hands of creditors. It has a better chance to work itself out of temporary troubles.

This is better than to have the owners squeezed out by banks or bondholders, and to have somebody who knows nothing about the business trying to run it. It is better both for investors and for the public.

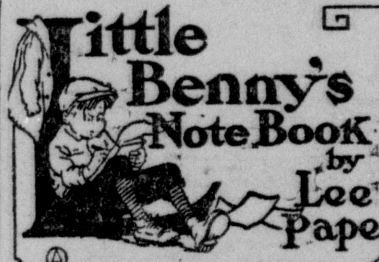

A concern financed by the sale of stocks can go ahead with greater confidence, planning for long-range efficiency, utilizing new inventions, employing more men, paying higher wages, reducing unit costs and prices.

Just as Henry Ford has done. He has always run his business, not on debts, but on capital.

Moreover, a concern financed in this way is in a position to build new equipment and employ more men, precisely when the whole country needs growth of that kind; namely, when a business depression is setting in.

The extraordinary prosperity of American business and the confidence in the immediate future are based in part upon this change from debts to stocks.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By Glenn Frank

EXPERIENCE AS A LIABILITY

Experience may be a liability,
as well as an asset.

The presidents of three large corporations, operating in the same field of business, were looking for general managers.

The president of the first corporation said he wanted a man of sound character, attractive personality, and maturity, who had had long experience as a general manager in the field in question.

The president of the second corporation said he wanted a young man, with energy, eagerness to learn, and readiness to work, who had no experience as a general manager in the field in question.

The president of the third corporation said he wanted a middle-aged man, with proper training and the usual acceptable personal qualities, who had had some experience, but not too much, as a general manager in the field in question.

Three men happened to be looking for positions as general managers; each possessed the technical and personal qualifications for a position as general manager of such corporations;
they differed, however, in the matters of age and experience.

One of the men was sixty years old, was a general manager at the time, and had held two such positions before.

Another of the three men was young, energetic, and an untiring worker, but had had no experience as a general manager.

Each of the three men considered himself qualified to hold any of the three positions, and each applied for all three positions.

Why did three men of such varying degrees of experience feel qualified for these positions, and why did three presidents set up three such differing requirements, ranging from no experience to long experience?

The answer is to be found in the points of view from which the different men judged the value of experience.

Some men assume that because they are doing a given job, and thereby gaining experience, they are becoming increasingly qualified for such a job.

But experience may mean that we have simply done something wrongly for a long while.

The repetition of an activity over a stretch of years may contribute to one's skill, but it is no insurance of growth.

The two presidents who wanted men with no experience or short experience in the sort of posts they sought to fill were simply seeking to avoid men to whom experience had meant crystallization of routine habits.

It is important to remember that experience is not a matter of years but is a question of the way in which we have reacted to our job or permitted our job to react upon us.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

COUNT THE COST

It is best to avoid emotional scenes with the children. It is the part of wisdom to avoid any crisis, any mind against mind, any clashing of wills and temperaments within the household.

"Yes, I know Willie has a violent temper and it always rises when anyone makes fun of his hair but he has to get over it. All his life people will do things that annoy him and he'd better get used to it now. His brothers and sisters won't do him any harm.
I'm sure of that."

Well, I'm not so sure. Willie's hair is his own. It was wished on him. If he had been given a choice he would undoubtedly have selected his handsome brother's waved and silken tresses but some god-mother-fairy gave him red hair straight as a poker, with a double crown thrown in and no parting. Isn't he sufficiently afflicted without having his burden turned against him? "Lay off him."

Willie can't be expected to know that this mop of his is a blessing in disguise. That red hair usually indicates certain sources of strength. That two crowns are an indication of something great to come. He isn't up on the folk-lore and the compensations of singularity. All he knows about it is that his hair is all wrong and he feels very bad about it.

Did you ever feel very bad about something that happened to you?
Something that you had nothing whatever to do with? Something that fate threw over her shoulder at you as she passed laughingly on her contrary way? The evening you were giving the grand party to impress your friend and the unknown uncle, wearing earrings, walked in? That's the way Willie feels when the pets of the fairies tease him about his stubby, unpartable hair.

And it is good neither for Willie nor those favored pets of fortune.
It makes Willie feel he is all wrong, quite out of it, unfit to attend the party of Youth. It makes the others feel themselves very superior about something there is no cause to feel upish about. In self defense Willie rises in wrath.
The kettle boils over and everybody is more or less blistered.
This costs too much all round.
Better avoid it.

It is more than likely that in the long run Willie of the red and stubborn hair, Mary Ann of the snub nose and the set chin, will come through strong for the same fairy that assorted their qualities and their outward expressions, so ordered. But the struggle leaves scars. Temper tantrums check the harmonious growth of the nervous system and are not good for mental attitudes. Family battles set memories and these in turn set wrong mental attitudes, which bear bitter fruit in their season.

When the children struggle against each other, count the costs to them and if they seem to promise to be too costly, pour a little oil on their troubled sea. Soothe the storm. It is better so.

BATTLE OF MONS

On August 23, 1914, the battle of Mons was fought in Belgium.
About 3 p. m., the German army attacked the British along the line of the Conde-Mons canal.

The British were to a certain extent surprised, and the powerful German artillery played havoc among them, with the result that that night the British forces were compelled to fall back to a position which had previously been reconnitered, resting on the left of the fortress of Maubeuge and extending on the right to Jan-lein, southeast of Valenciennes.

Opposing the English were the fourth and ninth German army corps, and they fought about equal numbers. The forces which awaited the German attack numbered about 86,000 men, roughly divided into 70,000 infantry, 10,000 cavalry and 312 guns.

The front of the British army covered about 20 miles and was an excessive strain upon so small a force, since the enemy was more compact.

The defeat in the battle of Mons was the beginning of the Anglo-French retreat which did not end until the famous battle of the Marne.

WONDER HE'S ALIVE

"Did you do as I prescribed—eat nothing but baby food?"
"Yep, doc—I ate four marbles, a handful of sand, a penny, two matches, and swallowed an old key ring, but I don't feel any better."
